230th Battalion

Background Information

Organized in March 1916 under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel René de Salaberry.

Authorization published in General Order 69 of 15 July 1916.

Mobilized at Ottawa.

Converted into a forestry unit on 25 September 1916.

Recruited in Ottawa, Hull, Brockville, Port Arthur and other parts of Ontario as well as in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

First draft left Halifax 26 January 1917 aboard SCANDINAVIAN.

Disembarked England 6 February 1917.

Second draft left Halifax 26 January 1917 aboard GRAMPIAN.

Arrived in England 6 February 1917.

Third draft left Halifax 4 March 1917 aboard AUSONIA.

Arrived in England 15 March 1917.

Absorbed by Canadian Forestry Corps at Sunningdale.

Perpetuated by Le Régiment de Hull.

Originally an infantry battalion 700 officers and men by fall of 1916 when recruiting “fell off to a very great extent and it was thought that the best thing to do was to turn the battalion into a forestry unit. [This was done on 25 Sept. 1916]. As soon as this was done most of the officers and men transferred to other units leaving only a strength of about 300 all ranks. Recruiting then took place all over Canada with headquarters at Brockville, Ontario and the battalion was very quickly up to full-strength, nearly all the balance of the unit being recruited in British Columbia and Manitoba” (RG 9III, vol. 4499, Hist. record, No. 23 log CFC).
