NOTES

Chapter 1

1. The crisis was probably to cause the Central Powers, Germany and Austria, to think with some reason that Britain was irrevocably divided, an opinion which no doubt affected their fateful decision regarding peace or war.

Chapter 2

1. In 1812 settlement of Simcoe County had not commenced but there were at least two trading posts in existence and surveys of town plots near Barrie and Penetanguishene as well as the Pentanguishene Road were under way. Recruits for Brock's York Volunteers probably came from these sources.
2. The Nancy was a small vessel used by the North West Company in its trading in the Georgian Bay. With the outbreak of the War of 1812 it was armed and was used for naval purposes, based upon the Nottawasaga River under command of Lieutenant Worsley who had erected a blockhouse at a point where the river meanders parallel with Lake Huron. Worsley, learning that his position was to be attacked by the heavily-armed American warships, Tigress and Scorpion, sailed his little ship, the Nancy, up the Nottawasaga River, which was comparatively shallow, to a point near the blockhouse. However, her masts were visible over the tree-line and the Americans were able to bombard both the Nancy and the blockhouse across the narrow neck of land. The Nancy blew up and sank in the river where her bones have been preserved to this day.

Some short time after the sinking of the Nancy an unbelievable thing happened. The Scorpion and the Tigress were in the vicinity of St. Joseph's Island where they were discovered by some Indians and some of the remnants of the French-Indian voyageurs. They stealthily boarded both vessels and, finding the Americans asleep, captured the warships along with some sixty prisoners. It was poetic justice that these prisoners were taken to Worsley's fort on the Nottawasaga and thence were taken as prisoners-of-war to Kingston. The pensions granted in 1875 include the names of five of those gallant Canadians who boarded the American warships. They had come with their families to Penetanguishene when the newly established boundary line between Canada and the United States made it clear that Drummond Island, their habitat, was on the United States' side of the border.

These early settlers in Simcoe County, of whom Antoine Gaudaur was one, were the descendants of the French voyageurs and those of the North West Company who had traded far into the Canadian West. Some of them had been with Mackenzie in the first crossing of the American continent. Nearly all of them, French and British, had some Indian blood. Some of the old families of the Orillia community traced their origin
