TO THE MEMORY OF THOSE WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES,
TO THEIR KINDRED,
TO THEIR COMRADES IN ARMS WHO HAVE RETURNED.
THIS RECORD OF SERVICE IS DEDICATED.

PREFACE

FOR the past five years Professor G. Oswald Smith has given most careful and helpful attention to the records of those of the graduates and undergraduates who served in the Great War. He has applied at every source where he thought most accurate information might be got, with the result that the Roll of Service, as it is now issued in final form, must be as accurate as earnest investigation can make it. It is a task which could only have been adequately performed by pious care. The record also will be kept and read with almost sacred regard by the friends of those who have fallen and who offered their lives for the cause of freedom. Future generations of graduates and undergraduates of this University will turn to this perpetual memorial.

An outline is given of the different war activities in which the University was engaged during this period. This will recall to many the work in which they had a share, and will let those who come after us know how we sought to do our part in the War.

R. A. FALCONER,
President.

EDITOR'S PREFACE

THE Roll of Honour contains the records of those who died when on Active Service. They are, with a few exceptions, based on information received from the next-of-kin or friends in each instance. Owing to the large number of the Fallen these memoirs have to be briefer than was originally planned, but all the documents received from relations, such as letters or newspaper accounts, are being kept among the University records, and it is hoped that full copies of them will be made and preserved in a room of the Memorial Tower.

At the head of each record the rank held at the time of death is given, but reversions from a higher rank are shown in the narrative. The place of burial is given when known, though with the removal of bodies to the larger cemeteries it is recognised that some statements in this respect are no longer accurate.

In the next section are given the records of those who died after discharge and within two years from the signing of the Armistice, when death appeared to be due in part to disabilities incurred on Active Service.

In the main Roll of Service are given in abbreviated form the records of those who have returned. In an Appendix are given the records of those who have entered the University for the first time after returning from service. These are not included in the Summary.

In the first line of each record the original graduation year is given, not the date of entry into the University. Where a second year is added in brackets it shows that the man has returned to College and resumed his course. At the end of the first line the Militia unit and rank prior to enlistment for the war are given. The Active Service record begins with the second line.

The battles given are not taken from any official list but are chosen as affording the most convenient indication of each man's service, though it is recognised that this method of description does not adequately suit every case. The battles in which Canadians took part and which are usually given here are Ypres (April 1915); Festubert (May 1915); Givenchy (June 1915); St. Eloi (April 1916); Ypres, including Sanctuary Wood, Zillebeke, Mount Sorrel (June 1916); Somme (September-November 1916); Vimy, including Fresnoy and other engagements south of Lens (April-July 1919); Hill 70 (August 1917); Passchendaele (October-November 1917); Amiens (August 1918); Arras, including Drocourt-Quéant and Canal du Nord (August-September 1918); Cambrai to Valenciennes or Mons (October-November 1918). The records usually close with the signing of the Armistice.

In most instances it is assumed that service was also rendered on the front where the Canadian Forces were stationed in the periods between these battles—e.g. at Vimy (January-April 1917), at Vimy, Lens, or Arras during the months after Passchendaele. Occasionally the form, e.g. 'Arras sec.' (sector) is used to distinguish such periods from a battle more generally known by the same name. For those serving in the Imperial Forces, in order to avoid confusion with the Canadian battles where any uncertainty might be involved, the dates are given—e.g. Arras (April-June 1917), Cambrai (November 1917).

For the Canadian General and Stationary Hospitals place names are not usually given, but these can be ascertained from the index near the end of the book.

The date of enlistment is given when known. Admittedly this does not do full justice to many who tried several times to enlist and were not accepted till later, when the physical standard had been lowered. The date of discharge is not as a rule given except for those who were invalided out of the service before November 1918. Cases of illness are only recorded when they resulted in long absence from the front.

Usually the successive units and ranks are given first, and casualties and honours are placed at the end of each record. The chronological order of events is thus broken, but on the whole it was found that this was the clearest method of arrangement.

In the honours the 1914-15 Star, the General Service and Victory Medals are not mentioned, as they are implied in the dates of the records themselves. When it is known the date of the action for which the honour was won is given, and not the Gazette date.

The purpose of the Introduction is not to anticipate the personal records of the main Roll of Service, except to a limited extent as regards the military units that were officially connected with the University. Consequently but few names occur twice in this book. Its object is to record briefly the history of the University here while so many of its members were away on active service, and to describe the efforts in national service made by the civilians remaining here. Such an account cannot be entirely impersonal, but those whose names are selected for mention, that is for the most part those who were officially more prominent, must be taken as representing many others who each according to his or her opportunity worked willingly and continuously during those years.

The cover of this volume has been designed by Mr. J. E. H. MacDonald, A.R.C.A.

In concluding this task the Editor wishes gratefully to acknowledge the assistance rendered him by all those within the University who were keeping records in the offices of the University Registrar and of the various Faculties and Colleges, by his assistants in the Roll of Service office, who were graduates of the University and gave devoted and unremitting care to their work, by the ex-service men themselves in answering enquiries about themselves and giving or obtaining information about others, and by the relatives and friends of the Fallen in giving the details on which the brief memorial accounts are based. Without the willing help of all these this work could not have been brought to completion. At best it can be but an imperfect record of the services rendered by nearly 6,000 sons of the University, but despite all defects may it be held as pietate operis excusatus.

INTRODUCTION

THE UNIVERSITY DURING THE WAR

WAR had been declared eight weeks before the session opened. On September 29th, 1914, the President in his opening address in Convocation Hall reviewed the causes of the war and appealed to the students present to face the issues before them, and in conclusion said:—

“This is the greatest of moral struggles. Are there to be free democracies who only need to police themselves against the force-attacks of the barbarous? Or will force tower arrogantly above freedom and enslave intellect? The struggle had to come. It is well to have it decided one way or other finally, for our own sakes and for our children’s. This struggle I want you to think about. Many of our members have already heard the call and have left to take their share in the war. Some of them will lay down their lives for our sakes. Others of you will doubtless go later. Most of us will, I suppose, remain at home. But do not shirk whatever sacrifice is necessary. Be ready to defend your life which, with its freedom, has been won for you by others. Live a life of sacrifice this winter and thereby contribute something to help the nation in relieving its suffering. Do not be light-hearted. You cannot be as merry as yesterday, nor as blithe as we hope you will be in the world’s to-morrow. The world is in agony, let this agony reach the depths of our nature also, so that it may purge our selfishness. If we shall not be called upon to die or be wounded in the flesh, I hope that we may carry into the revived life of our nation, when it issues from the struggle, the healed wounds of the spirit that will be the sign of the battle in which we have won over again the right to call ourselves free-men in a real democracy.”

The purpose of this record is to show what was the response made to the challenge thus voiced. In the end the answer went beyond the words of this first appeal. As time went on it became clear that most of those who were then addressed could not remain. Though to nearly all present and to the graduates throughout the country war had seemed remote and improbable, and when it came none could foretell its extent and intensity, the response was prompt and continuous. To those of us remaining here it was not always easy to realise how steadily the men were leaving through the years that followed. Singly or in small groups they went away, often without a word except a brief farewell to intimate friends.

When the 1914-1915 session opened the First Contingent was about to sail. In it were some two hundred members of the University, most of whom had previously been members of the Active Militia. Those who were with No. 2 Stationary Hospital and a few others were to reach France before the close of the year and become entitled to the Mons Star. In command of the Third Battalion, Toronto Regiment, was Lt.-Col. M. S. Mercer, who had begun his soldier's career as a student in 1885 and was destined to end it as Commander of the Third Canadian Division at Sanctuary Wood.

In the account that follows a general record of the events of each session is first given. Special work done by certain departments is for the most part described under the year 1917. Then the services of particular military units connected with the University are briefly recorded.

Through the first part of the year the teaching work of the University went on with little outward change, except that lectures and laboratory classes were cancelled after 4.00 p.m. to enable the undergraduates and members of the staff to drill in the newly organised C.O.T.C. and to receive military instruction. A course of public lectures on the war and its causes was given by members of the staff, and in place of the usual extension series nearly two hundred addresses were given in the Province on behalf of the Red Cross and other patriotic funds. The Speakers' Patriotic League had its offices in the University, Professor A. H. Abbott being its first Secretary. Members of the Modern Languages Department gave instruction in French to groups of soldiers in training at Exhibition Camp, and also prepared a French and German conversation manual for their use.

In the course of the session Dr. Auguste Ledoux, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Brussels, arrived to be the guest of the staff as a special lecturer in the University. This position he held till his sudden death in 1918, which was due in part to the strain that he had undergone in the first days of the war. He had fought in the defence of Liège and Antwerp till he was wounded and disabled from further military service.

Early in 1915 an epidemic of cerebro-spinal meningitis broke out among the troops in training at Exhibition Camp and at Bellevillè, and the assistance of the University Bacteriological Department was invoked. Professor J. J. Mackenzie, with Dr. Duncan Graham and other members of the staff in Medicine, immediately undertook the work of examining the several hundred men of the units in which cases had occurred and of isolating those infected and all 'carriers'. Dean Clarke and the staff of the General Hospital co-operated in every way, setting apart a special section of the building for the victims of the disease, and a camp for the carriers at the old General Hospital. The requisite anti-meningitis serum was provided by the Department of Hygiene. Apart from the care of those suffering from the disease, the usual work of the laboratories was multiplied many times for some weeks in the examining of thousands of swabs, the testing of cases, and the preparation and maintenance of the requisite apparatus. Valuable assistance was given by the members of the fifth year in Medicine who had enlisted in No. 2 Casualty Clearing Station and were in training at the time. By this prompt and strenuous action the spread of the disease was soon arrested and limited to some twenty cases, half of which ended in recovery.

Throughout these months men were leaving College and enlisting. The Second Division was forming, and many joined the units in training at Exhibition Camp, specially the 4th Artillery Brigade, the 19th Battalion, the Divisional Cyclists, and the Eaton Machine Gun Battery. A group of medical students and graduates joined No. 2 Casualty Clearing Station, and those of them who graduated shortly afterwards obtained commissions in the R.A.M.C. on reaching England.

On February 23rd, 1915, a farewell dinner was given to 136 members of the University who were leaving for overseas with the Second Division. Addresses were given by the President and the Heads of Faculties and Colleges, the tenor of which is indicated by these words spoken by the Principal of University College:—

"You are preparing to fulfil the first, and for most the highest duty of man—you are going to the front that the privileges of freedom which our fathers won, not without pain and sacrifice and the throwing away of all that the world counts comfortable and worth having, may be handed down undiminished to our children. You are fighting just as surely for the liberty and the nationality of this proud land, though you will fight in Europe, as for the liberties and nationalities of Europe. You have faced the risks and offer your sacrifice—the supremest sacrifice most men can offer—for Canada's sake, that she may be still a proud and free country.

"You will not repent it. When you return your romance will not vanish with your youth. You will have fought in the great war, you will have joined in the liberation of the world. You will be part and parcel of the heroic days of Canada, when she showed that she was conscious of her past and worthy of a future; that, the youngest of the nations, she had the ideals and the traditions of the proud races from which she sprang, and could rewrite those ideals and those traditions afresh for her descendants in her own out-poured blood.

"You will be to us as the Italians of the great days of Italy, as Garibaldi and Mazzini and Cavour and the Cairolis, and thousands of others are to the present-day Italians—the great figures of their country's history, the redeeming memories which have survived into a meaner and a poorer age.

"And for those who do not return—for them there will be an even tenderer regard, and a more affectionate and wistful memory. You will be canonised even, it may be, as time goes on and memory lends her magic and distance her enchantments; and in the tears and heartache of your friends, there will be only grief and respect, and a desire that our children and children's children may be worthy of you; that the young life which will still be rioting round these University halls may be keyed up to your pattern and take to heart your example. Not unhappy surely is the nation which makes such pedestals for its dead, and not unhappy the fate of the young man who is set thereon."

On February 25th a special Convocation was held to confer degrees on nearly fifty of those who were then about to go overseas. On this occasion was first put into force the decision to grant to all students going on active service a certain measure of academic credit. The conditions varied in the different faculties. In Arts each student was granted one year's standing or a part thereof. Thus later most of those who returned were enabled to complete their courses with three year's study. To the members of the staff who were absent on service the University granted half their annual salary until their return.

In March came a call for recruits in the 25th Battery of the 7th Artillery Brigade. Nearly a section was raised from within the University in a few days. The departure of these men for Ottawa on the night of the 16th will long be remembered by many, as it was the first opportunity of giving a send-off to a large group of University students. A few days later another section was raised for the 26th Battery and left amid similar enthusiasm for Kingston.

During the same month was raised the unit which has been most closely identified with this University's name—No. 4 General Hospital, whose service is recorded in a later section. On May 5th in Convocation Hall the University bade its members farewell, and ten days later they sailed from Montreal. To provide the needful equipment for this unit the University Women's Hospital Association was now organised and continued its work for the four following years.

The session closed a month earlier than usual in this and the following years. The examinations were held in April and Commencement in May. The proceedings at Convocation on May 21st, 1915, were comparatively brief and were sad rather than joyous, for the second battle of Ypres had recently been fought and several sons of the University had fallen at St. Julien. On this occasion was read for the first time the list of the Fallen, which was repeated with growing numbers at each successive Commencement for the next four years. On two their degrees were conferred after death—Capt. A. C. Bastedo and Pte. D. E. Haig.

Thus ended the most memorable session in the history of this University. During the vacation its members were active for the most part elsewhere than in its grounds and buildings, but the rooms of the University Women's Hospital Supply Association were filled with workers through the summer. At Niagara and other camps many were in training, and University men were in most of the Ontario and Western units that were being raised. Half the officers of one local battalion were graduates or students. At the close of the C.O.T.C. camp in May the first Toronto contingent to the Universities Companies reinforcing the Princess Patricias was raised, and during the following months the recruits for these units were enrolled at the C.O.T.C. orderly room.

Just before the next session opened occurred an event of great interest in itself, which acquired fuller significance a year and a half later. The plans of the Anglo-American Peace Centenary (1814-1914) Committee had been interrupted by the war; but one part of their programme was completed on September 20th, 1915, when in a special Convocation honorary degrees were conferred on six American members of the Committee—the late Hon. Joseph H. Choate, Professor W. C. Osborn, Messrs. W. B. Howland and J. A. Stewart, the Hon. Justice A. B. Parker, and President Murray Butler of Columbia University. The eloquent speech in response made by Mr. Choate revealed the direction in which the currents of American opinion were setting, soon to acquire decisive force. The speaker's long years of life were drawing to a close, but before the end came he saw the fulfilment of his desire, that the two countries whose common welfare he had served should be united in common action and in defence of a great cause.

1915-1916

When the session opened the number of men students was about 650 less than in the previous October and through the winter the attendance steadily dwindled through enlistments. Many members of the staff were also absent on military service. This involved additional work for those teachers who remained, since only a limited number of substitutes could be found, and although the classes were smaller they were not as a rule much fewer in number. Consequently in most departments full courses of instruction were still required.

The strain was especially heavy in the Faculty of Medicine, as about fifty of the staff were absent and the number of students was not much lessened, since those in the senior years were directed by the military authorities to complete their courses so as to qualify for commissions in the A.M.C., and already men who had enlisted in the previous year were being sent back from the front for the same purpose. In addition to the work of the regular year, a special summer session in medicine was held from May 1916 onwards, in response to a request from the War Office, in order that many might graduate six months earlier than usual.

Outside of the work of the class-rooms the changes wrought by the war in the life of the University were becoming more manifest. The C.O.T.C. began training with a slightly smaller enrolment than a year before. Its strength rapidly diminished with the continuous enlistments for overseas service. For the senior medical students a special military course of A.M.C. training was provided. The Inter-University football and hockey matches were suspended, not to be resumed till 1919, but the Mulock Cup and other games were continued. The fraternity houses were closed. The various students' societies now either gave up their activities altogether or reduced their programmes. The women students, individually or in groups, were engaged in knitting and preparing materials, and the Hospital Supply Association was continuously active. The grounds were used largely by the District School of Infantry.

During the first part of the year the undergraduates who enlisted were joining various units of the C.E.F. and not one or two in particular, except the Universities' Companies, P.P.C.L.I. About the New Year, however, a considerable number of men, mostly from Knox College, enlisted together in the 43rd Howitzer Battery, C.F.A., which was raised in Guelph and reached France as a unit. From now onwards many joined also the Divisional Signal Companies of the Engineers. At the end of December the first draft of candidates selected from the C.O.T.C. for Imperial commissions left for England.

The question was now discussed of raising a distinct combatant unit bearing the University's name, in which its members could train and serve overseas together. There were two classes to consider, those who wished to qualify for commissions and those who preferred to join the ranks. Consequently it seemed better to meet the needs of both, and application was made for authorisation to raise two units, one an Officers Training Company as an Active Service branch of the C.O.T.C., the other an Artillery Battery. From this came the Overseas Training Company and the 67th Depot Battery, both of which during the rest of the war maintained a close connection with the University. Though neither of these units was destined to go overseas, they gave fellow students and graduates the opportunity of taking their first training together, usually for several months. From this time onwards a large proportion of the University of Toronto men who enlisted began their service in one or other of these units.

At the end of the session the University sustained losses which made its members realise with greater intensity the cost of the war. Edward Kylie, whose promise as scholar and teacher was already finding rich fulfilment, died in May while in training at Owen Sound; and not many days later the casualty reports from Sanctuary Wood and Mount Sorrel announced the deaths of many whose records are given in this book. In the list also was the name of one who, though not himself a member of the University, was well known to many here—Victor Van der Smissen, the only son of his parents, who fell in action on June 13th.

At the opening of the next session the attendance of men students was reduced by 600, and before the end of January another 600 had left. This year was passed under conditions similar to those of the previous session. To those watching the casualty lists there was no relief. The Somme campaign continued through October and November; there was a short respite during the winter months, but the session closed while the fighting round Vimy and Lens was in progress.

In view of the call for service at home by all those who could not enlist, the University held in January 1917 a registration of all its students, both men and women, in order to ascertain their physical condition and their willingness to do national work during the following summer. Very few men were found to be fit for active service, so that when some months later the Military Service Act came into force, even on a lowered standard it had no appreciable effect in the University. 220 of the men in attendance had volunteered for overseas service and had been rejected, and most of the others had some physical defect. Nearly all stated their willingness to do national service, more particularly in agriculture and munitions, and there is reason to believe that all these promises were fulfilled in the following vacation. Of the remainder some, who had been under age in 1916, enlisted, and most of the others were not fit for service in any of the usual forms.

The C.O.T.C. continued its work, but on a considerably reduced establishment, since by this time most of its original members had gone overseas. Of the 500 enrolled in the Corps most were freshmen. The Overseas Training Company was quartered in Burwash Hall, Victoria College, and the 67th Battery, after summer training at Niagara and Petawawa, spent the winter at Exhibition Camp.

In the course of the session two special Convocations were held, the first on January 23rd, 1917, to confer the honorary degree of LL.D. on The Duke of Devonshire, the new Governor-General, and the second on May 26th to admit to the same degree the Right Honourable Arthur James Balfour, who was in America on the British Mission to the United States. In the course of his address Mr. Balfour said:—

“I saw just now the honoured roll of those belonging to the University of Toronto who have already perished in the war. I refuse to think, I do not think, that they have perished in vain. I do not merely mean that their efforts as soldiers or as doctors or whatever they may have been—I do not merely mean that they have helped, and we recognise that they have helped, to bring a victory to the Allies which means in the long run victory to civilisation. I mean something deeper, and profounder, something more intimately connected with the life of this University. Believe me, the sacrifice made by these young men, with all life before them, is not merely service to their country and to the world; it is direct service to the University which they have left for more dangerous and perilous methods of doing their duty in that station in the Empire to which they have been called.

“And the reason I think so is that there is a common life belonging to every great institution, and above all to every great University, which goes on continually from generation to generation, which knows no break, which is the very ideal of earthly immortality. Now, when the future generations come to this great seat of learning in order to equip themselves for the struggle in life which is before them, do not doubt that they will get inspiration by looking at that list of immortal heroes; that they will feel that the University which they have attended is no mere organisation for imparting useful information, but that in its life it has done glorious and heroic things, and if the need should again come upon the country which it serves, the need will again be satisfied with equal courage, equal patriotism, and equal devotion to public duty.”

In the Honours List of June 3, 1917, the President was made Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. He insisted that the honour was conferred on the University for its service in the war rather than on him personally; but those who watched his unselfish devotion to the duty of the hour and his patient direction of their efforts felt that he had himself won a place of special distinction in the University's history.

At this point may be mentioned certain changes which do not belong to any one session, but were developed mostly in the course of the year 1917, and also the work done by certain departments in the University more particularly in the years 1917 and 1918.

THE ROYAL FLYING CORPS

In the spring of this year the Royal Flying Corps established a training centre for the Dominion with headquarters at Toronto. As the school grew during the next eighteen months a considerable portion of the University or College grounds and buildings were given over to this Force. These were the front and back lawns, parts of the Engineering Building, Convocation Hall, and Hart House, Wycliffe College, most of Burwash Hall, and the University Residences. In 1918 the University back lawn and the quadrangle of Burwash Hall were also filled with tents. The cadets received their preliminary training here, before being sent to the flying camps at Leaside, Borden and Deseronto. In the summer of 1917 many American cadets were seen training in company with the Canadians. In the first days, before the establishment of the school was complete, members of the staff in Applied Science voluntarily gave instruction to the cadets. A large body of instructors was eventually brought to Canada, in which were several members of the University who had seen service at the front. Among the cadets were many of the latest generation of undergraduates, and students from the upper grades of the schools, many of whom entered the University after the war. The propellers now seen in various University buildings are memorials of the stay of this Force in Toronto.

USE OF BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

Reference may also be made here to other uses made of the buildings either for troops in training or for those engaged in the care of disabled soldiers, who were now returning in large numbers.

Part of Hart House had already been assigned by the Massey Foundation to the District School of Musketry. The remainder of the building was now divided between the Flying Corps, the training school for masseuses and those employed in 'functional re-education.' In addition the part of Burwash Hall not used by the Flying Corps was occupied by the Training Company. One University Residence was for a time used by the N.C.O. Training School, and was then given over with the others to the Flying Corps. The grounds and one wing of Trinity College had previously been occupied by the 123rd and 228th Battalions when training. When St. Andrew's College building was requisitioned by the C.A.M.C. for a hospital the school moved into Knox College. Rooms in the Library, the Physics and Biological Buildings were used by the Hospital Supply Association, the Secours National and similar organisations.

THE CONNAUGHT ANTITOXIN LABORATORIES

In May 1914 the Laboratories were opened and so were fortunately in working order when the war's demand began. By these the agents for the prevention and treatment of diphtheria, small-pox, meningitis and tetanus were supplied at cost for all civilian needs not only in the Province but also through the whole of Canada and Newfoundland. When the war began there was a serious shortage in the supply of tetanus antitoxin. The Canadian Red Cross was at first enabled to obtain 10,000 packages from the United States, but it was clear that this supply would not last long. The University Laboratories were then further equipped by a grant from the Dominion Government, so that they could supply at cost the entire amount needed for the Canadian troops. Before the end of 1916 50,000 packages had been sent overseas and in addition all the small-pox vaccine required was supplied. All this was done without impairing the supply for local civilian needs. The work was carried on under the direction of Drs. J. G. FitzGerald and R. D. Defries of the Department of Hygiene.

As the extended service was at first hampered by the lack of accommodation for horses and other animals and by want of adequate laboratory space, Lt.-Col. A. E. Gooderham, a member of the Board of Governors, purchased a fifty acre farm in York Township, on which he built and equipped laboratories and stables, generously presenting the entire plant to the University. These Laboratories, named after H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, were completed in 1916, and were formally opened by his successor the Duke of Devonshire on October 25th, 1917.

The extent and importance done by this department of the University can be judged by the following figures which show the amounts supplied to the Army and the Red Cross during the war:—tetanus antitoxin 250,000—1,500 unit doses; small-pox vaccine 700,000 tubes; diphtheria antitoxin 57,665,000 units; anti-meningitis serum 75,000 cubic centimetres.

FUNCTIONAL RE-EDUCATION AND PHYSIOTHERAPY

In the winter of 1916-1917 Dr. E. A. Bott, of the Psychological Department, assisted by private subscriptions and voluntary help on the part of some of his colleagues in Arts and others, opened a small clinic for the 'functional re-education' of disabled soldiers. The aim was to restore to their normal working physical or mental powers that had become impaired by war disabilities, and in particular to remedy injuries to the nervous or muscular system received from wounds or shock. The method was largely psychological. Each patient was gradually induced to recover his self-control and self-confidence. This was often done by giving repeated practice with simple mechanical appliances fitted with metrical devices whereby each man might for himself register his progress.

In May 1917 the Military Hospitals Commission organised work of this kind on a larger scale, and the workers in the University were transferred to the staff that was now established in Hart House, part of which building had been granted for this purpose by the Massey Trustees. Here many patients were directly treated, but at the same time a school was organised for training special workers to be sent to the hospitals of the Dominion. Classes in massage were also established in the same building. In the summer of 1917 Dr. Bott was sent to England and France to investigate the methods in use there.

In 1918 the whole of this work was transferred to the C.A.M.C., which established in Hart House a general School of Physiotherapy, in which all the various systems of treatment, functional re-education, massage, hydrotherapy, electrotherapy, etc., might be coördinated. The work was directed by the late Lt.-Col. Robert Wilson of Montreal, who had acquired wide experience of these methods both in France and in England. To the staff of the school were added some University men who had returned from service in France. Professors J. P. McMurrich, E. F. Burton, and others gave their voluntary assistance by lectures and instruction in the University laboratories.

The experiments made in practice revealed the need of further investigations of the fundamental principles underlying the work, and measures were taken to organise the special researches required. The necessary funds had been supplied in the first instance by private generosity. In July 1918 Professor J. J. R. Macleod arranged to provide additional accommodation in the department of Physiology, and a committee of the staff under Professor J. J. Mackenzie was appointed by the President to supervise the development of the work, for which provision was made for the year 1918-1919 by a grant of $1,500 from the Board of Governors.

Partly because the immediate military needs were still great, partly because further investigations and experiments were required to reach permanent results, the work was continued after 1918. In 1919 the Dominion Government made a grant of $12,000, through the Department of Militia and Defence, and the Director General of Medical Services appointed a research committee, consisting mostly of the same personnel, to continue similar investigations. Lt.-Col. Wilson was its chairman, and after his death Col. C. L. Starr. After demobilisation steps have been taken to transfer the work to the Department of Health with a view to perpetuating for the general benefit the efforts that were first evoked by the war's needs. The research work has been continued into the present year through the co-operation of various scientific departments.

WORK DONE UNDER THE ADMIRALTY BOARD OF INVENTION AND RESEARCH

The question of procuring sufficient supplies of helium to replace hydrogen in naval and military airships was first taken up by Sir Richard Threlfall, whose efforts received strong support from the Admiralty Board of Invention and Research under the late Lord Fisher. In 1915 Professor J. C. McLennan was asked by the Board to make investigations to determine the helium content of the natural gas supplies available within the British Empire and assist in devising methods for its production. Associated with him were his colleagues in the Department of Physics, Professors E. F. Burton and J. Satterly, and Captain H. A. McTaggart after his return from Salonica; also Professor Dawes of McMaster University, and Messrs. John Patterson of the Meteorological Office, and R. T. Elworthy of the Department of Mines, Ottawa. Reports were made from all the natural gas fields of Canada, and an experimental station for extracting the helium from the gas was established at Hamilton. In 1918 a new station was opened in the West. A station was also established near London, England, in 1917.

In 1917 when the United States entered the war it was arranged to co-operate with the American scientists in developing the supplies of helium available within their territory, and Professor Satterly was associated with Commander Bridge and Lieut.-Commander Lowcock of the Royal Navy for this purpose. By the summer of 1918 helium was produced in moderate quantities at relatively small cost in both countries, and had the war been prolonged, large supplies would have been assured. Investigations were also begun with a view to developing the industrial and scientific uses of helium for other than war needs.

From May 1917 till the close of the war Professor McLennan himself was in England serving first as a collaborator with the Board of Invention and Research of the Admiralty, and later as Director of Research for the Admiralty. Besides supervising the work done in connection with helium, he was employed in directing a series of investigations and experiments in connection with the development of anti-submarine devices, as well as electromagnetic and magnetic aids to navigation. From December 1917 until September 1919 a number of University graduates and advanced students in the Department of Physics were working under his direction at London and other centres in Great Britain.

In November 1919 the President received a letter from the Lords of the Admiralty thanking the University for having made it possible for Professor McLennan to spend these years in the services that are briefly here described and in contributing to the elaboration of permanent arrangements for applying scientific research to naval problems.

INDUSTRIAL TRAINING AND OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY

From 1917 onwards members of the staff, particularly in Applied Science, rendered assistance in refitting disabled soldiers for civilian occupations. Professor H. E. T. Haultain was appointed Vocational Officer for Ontario under the Invalided Soldiers Commission (later the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment). He arranged with his colleagues for their help chiefly in two directions.

Classes for industrial instruction in such subjects as the use of agricultural tractors and the repair of automobiles were formed, the temporary Gymnasium being lent for the purpose. Courses were also given in mining and assaying, plan-reading and estimating, applied electricity, etc. The instructors themselves were mostly expert mechanics, and their work was done under the supervision of a committee of the Faculty—the late Dean W. H. Ellis, Professors C. H. C. Wright, G. A. Guess, H. W. Price, L. M. Arkley and others.

For the more seriously injured men courses in 'occupational therapy' were established. The work began in the hospitals, but it was not aimed merely at restoring the use of disabled limbs, but directed to practical training in woodwork, basketry, book-binding, modelling, drawing, etc. The classes held in the University did not as a rule deal directly with the patients but were for the instruction of teachers. During the next two years over 250 women teachers were trained and sent to various hospitals and centres throughout the country. The work was done under the general direction of the same committee. Mr. J. W. Chester and a staff of special instructors, drawn partly from outside sources, partly from within the University, supervised the work in detail. For these classes the east end of the Mining Building and the Library Reading-room were used.

OTHER SERVICES

Some of the special services rendered by the Faculty of Medicine have been referred to in the preceding general account. More can be discovered by a reference to the personal records that follow. In the latter years of the war several members of the staff and graduates in Medicine were employed as Consultants at Headquarters in England, at Ottawa, and in the various Military Districts of Canada. The services contributed by the general body of medical graduates is also indicated by these figures:—C.A.M.C. commissions 832; R.A.M.C. commissions 212; Naval medical service 76.

Similar service was also rendered by the Royal College of Dental Surgeons. The importance of dentistry for the good health of the troops was recognised in Canada sooner than elsewhere, and an Army Dental Corps was first organised in the Canadian Forces. In 1916 a special summer session of the College was held, to enable the senior students to qualify sooner than usual for commissions in the C.A.D.C., and early in 1917 a special course was arranged to train junior students for positions as Sergeant laboratory assistants and Privates. For the session 1917-1918 it was enacted that every freshman who was physically fit should be required to take a special course of training for the work of Dental Sergeant. By these measures the needs of the service were continuously met.

The Ontario Veterinary College and the Ontario College of Pharmacy made similar special arrangements for training their students to meet the demands of the war. Graduates of the Ontario Agricultural College were also employed as experts in agriculture not only in Canada, but also in Great Britain and France. Many of the more important positions in the Canadian Forestry Corps overseas were held by graduates in Forestry.

Several members of the staff and graduates in Science were employed as experts and consultants in munition plants in Canada and Great Britain. Professor Watson Bain was appointed in February 1918 Chemical Adviser to the Canadian War Mission at Washington.

Professor A. H. Abbott was Secretary of the Speakers' Patriotic League in 1915 and 1916. He was also Secretary of the British Red Cross Appeals in 1915, 1916, and 1917 (in which over 5,000,000 dollars were raised), Secretary of the Organisation of Resources Committee, Director of Labour in Ontario for the Imperial Munitions Board and Secretary to other patriotic organisations. Since the close of the war he has become permanent General Secretary of the Canadian Red Cross.

During the vacations of 1917 and 1918 most of the students were employed on national service in Canada. Several of the women undergraduates were employed in fruit picking in the Niagara district. Some members of the staff also gave their time to speaking in different parts of the Province for the 'Greater Production' campaign.

MILITARY INSTRUCTORS IN THE COLLEGES OF THE UNITED STATES

When the United States entered the war, a demand came from the Colleges for military instructors from Canada who had seen service overseas. From this University were sent some who had been invalided home, whose experience at the front combined with their academic training especially fitted them for this work. These were:—Lieut. R. Hodder Williams, M.C., to Columbia University; Lieut. W. H. King, D.S.O., to the City College, New York, and Johns Hopkins University; Major P. P. Aclard, M.C., to the Washington State College and Groton School, Mass.; Lieut. Raymond Massey to Princeton University and later to Yale University; Lieut. A. Bland to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and later to Yale University; Lieut. E. H. Saer to the Southern Methodist College, Dallas; Lieut. W. W. Lang to Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.; Lieut. W. N. MacQueen to Cornell College, Mount Vernon, Iowa; Lieut. S. N. Dixon to New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, N.M.; Major R. N. Davy to Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.; Lieut. W. Martin to the University of Michigan.

THE VARSITY ILLUSTRATED SUPPLEMENT

Each year from 1915 to 1919 the Students' Council—under the direction of Professor T. R. Loudon and the Rev. S. Childs, Presidents, and the late Harry W. Hayes and C. C. Grant, Secretaries, assisted by other members—issued a Magazine Supplement containing illustrated articles on the University and the war, and also all obtainable portraits of the University men on service. From several of the special articles written in this Magazine or the 'University Monthly' some of the material for this Introduction is drawn. The proceeds of the Supplement amounted to nearly $40,000. Of this sum $6,000 were given to the purchase of two motor-ambulances for the Canadian Red Cross, $3,841 to the Patriotic and Canadian Red Cross Funds, $7,835 to the British Red Cross, $474 to the Belgian and Serbian Relief, $7,135 to the University Hospital, $2,356 to the re-education of soldiers in Hart House, $1,950 to the University Battery, $1,550 to the University Training Company, $200 to the Universities Tank Battalion. The greater part of the balance was given to the War Memorial Fund and devoted to the assistance of returned members of the University.

The session calls for but a brief record. In its first months the terrible casualty lists from Passchendaele recorded the loss of many of the University's sons. The work described in previous sections was continued. For the fifth year students in Medicine the session began in August, enabling them to complete their courses and go overseas by March 1918. In other faculties the attendance was again diminished, and of the first year students who were still under age for the M.S.A. many enlisted during the year.

A measure was now adopted which, with modifications, has since become permanent. Every male student was required to undergo a medical examination and to take physical training. In view of the immediate need it was enacted that this should take the form of military drill and instruction. Preliminary arrangements were made for a Department of Military Studies which was organised by Col. W. R. Lang after his return in 1919. The work of this class is now continued as part of the regular academic curriculum.

In October the Connaught Antitoxin Laboratories were opened. The 67th Battery was again quartered at Exhibition Camp, and the Training Company at Burwash Hall. At the end of the session the First Canadian Universities Tank Battalion was organised, and many students enlisted in the University of Toronto Company.

Commencement was held on May 17th, 1918, when honorary degrees were conferred on Earl Reading, the Hon. Elihu Root, and (in absence) M. J. J. Jusserand, French Ambassador to the United States. On the lawn the R.A.F. Cadet School was drawn up in review order, and the academic procession was headed by fifty returned University soldiers. After the degrees were conferred addresses were made by both the recipients. In concluding the Hon. Mr. Root said:—

“May not our great Universities in the future carry on in the coming generations the lessons that we are learning to-day in that great conflict of principle in France and Flanders? May not our great Universities conscientiously, assiduously, with wise forethought and judgment teach patriotism, teach love of liberty, teach true love of justice, and teach young men and young women how to serve liberty, to serve justice, to serve their country, as well as teach them Latin, Greek, Mathematics and Applied Science? I conceive that that great mission is before the great educational institutions of this Continent, I am confident that it is, and in the future course of the University of Toronto in the performance of this high duty I hope to live long enough to feel my pride redoubled in this new and prized association with your great University.”

All returned encouraged by the victories of the summer, but saddened by the growing casualty lists. In those closing days more than a hundred names were added to the University's Roll of Honour, and it still seemed as if another session must follow like the four preceding.

On November 11th the long agony was over. The buildings were closed, and for a day all gave themselves up to common rejoicing. Soon the return to the old order became apparent. Many who were demobilised in Canada immediately resumed or began their University courses, and once again a large number of men were seen in the College halls, and old activities were renewed. Early in 1919 many of those returning from overseas had come back, and they continued to come during the months that followed. To meet their needs—some 400 had returned by May—special arrangements were made. New classes were formed and continued to the end of July, and by this means many were enabled to complete a year's work. For those who had enlisted on leaving school special courses were provided, so that they might be ready to begin the regular first year work in the following October. For those of this group who arrived later and who had not matriculation standing when they had enlisted, a special preparatory class was continued through the session of 1919-20. It was decided to allow the same academic credit to ex-service men entering the University as had been given to those who had enlisted from it. In Arts they were given the opportunity of graduating in three years, and in Medicine, where a six year course was being introduced, they were allowed to complete in five years. Nearly all the returned men took up their studies in earnest and determinedly overcame the initial difficulties. The class lists of the next two years have revealed the success of their efforts.

ACADEMIC PROGRESS

Lest it should be thought that during these years little or no academic progress was made, a brief reference to this side of the University's life is needed. With many of the teaching staff absent and because of the mental strain of these years the classes were conducted with some difficulty, but though some loss of efficiency was inevitable, on the whole the usual standards were maintained and in several directions progress was attained. The details of a revised general course in Arts were planned, and it was brought into force in the fall of 1919. The course in Medicine was extended to six years and provision made for a general as well as a purely professional education. The Board of Graduate Studies in Arts and Medicine was established in 1915, whose work rapidly developed in extent and value, and in 1917 a School of Engineering Research was organised in Applied Science. In this year also a special fund was set apart for research and investigations particularly in Medicine and Applied Science, and important work was done immediately on problems arising from the war. Fellowships for graduate work were given by private benefactors, and others contributed to the medical research fund. In the year 1918-19 the first full time professorship in Medicine was established by the gift of Sir John and Lady Eaton. Lt.-Col. A. E. Gooderham gave the Connaught Laboratories in 1916, and a laboratory for investigations in zymology in 1918. In 1917-18 a Faculty of Music was created, with Dr. A. S. Vogt as Dean, and instruction began in the next session. A new University Department of Psychology was organised under Professor C. K. Clarke, Dean of Medicine, to co-ordinate the study and teaching of the subject which hitherto had been partially dealt with in various faculties. The Department of Social Service, which was organised shortly before the war, became securely established and since then has greatly extended its sphere of usefulness. The work of the University Extension, Correspondence Schools and Local Lectures was continued and before the close of the war plans were outlined for the formation of a local Workers' Educational Association which have since been more fully developed.

THE UNIVERSITY WAR MEMORIAL

A month after the Armistice a large meeting of graduates was held, and a representative committee of the Alumni Association was appointed to raise subscriptions and prepare plans for a Memorial to the Fallen. It was decided to spend part of the fund on the erection of a Memorial Tower between Hart House and University College, and to devote the remainder to the foundation of scholarships. It was arranged that the subscribers of each local centre should in a measure control the award of the scholarship within the particular district, and that a preference should be given to children and relatives of the Fallen.

In all $350,000 have been subscribed, and the foundation stone of the Tower was laid by the Governor-General on Armistice Day 1919. In addition the University war veterans themselves have undertaken to provide a special fund for erecting the wall and arcade on which the names of those who died on service will be recorded.

As the Dominion Government was unable to make any special provision for University students who had been on service, and in consequence many veterans were unable to begin or to continue their courses, it was decided to give them assistance by loans from the Memorial Fund, and by June 1921 $83,926 have been loaned to 303 students.

HONORARY DEGREES

In the days that followed the University added to the register of its honorary graduates some who, as soldiers or civilians, had rendered conspicuous service in the war.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, on his visit to Toronto in August 1919, received the degree of LL.D. both as Heir to the Throne and as one who had served at the front for four years.

On October 15th, 1919, the degree was conferred on His Eminence

Cardinal Mercier, and on Armistice Day the following were admitted:— Major-General Sir Willoughby Gwatkin, C.B., C.M.G., Chief of the General Staff, Canada; Major-General J. T. Fotheringham, C.M.G., A.D.M.S. of the Second Division in France and later Acting Director General of Medical Services in Canada; Brigadier-General C. H. Mitchell, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., who was on the Staff of the Canadian Forces in France, and later of the Second British Army in France and the British Forces in Italy; Professor J. C. McLennan, O.B.E., F.R.S., who had done special work at the Admiralty. The degree of Master of Household Science was conferred on Matron-in-Chief Edith Catharine Rayside, R.R.C.; and that of M.A. on Major T. W. MacDowell, V.C., D.S.O., as the member of the University who won the highest military honour,¹ and as representing “thousands of graduates and undergraduates who have done their duty, fought, even died, having performed countless deeds of valour which in their sum constitute Canada’s glory.”

General Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., Commander of the Canadian Corps, was to have been honoured at the same time, but was unable to be present. He received his degree on Commencement Day in June 1920, together with Major-General Sir Charles Townshend, K.C.B., the defender of Kut. At the Convocation of June 1921 the degree was conferred on General the Right Honourable Jan Christiaan Smuts, P.C., Commander of the East African Force, and one of the master builders of the League of Nations.

Victoria Cross, Captain Thain Wendell MacDowell, 38th Battalion.

For most conspicuous bravery and indomitable resolution in face of heavy machine gun and shell fire. By his initiative and courage this officer, with the assistance of two runners, was enabled, in the face of great difficulties, to capture two machine guns, besides two officers and seventy-five men. Although wounded in the hand, he continued for five days to hold the position gained, in spite of heavy shell fire, until eventually relieved by his battalion. By his bravery and prompt action he undoubtedly succeeded in rounding up a very strong enemy machine gun post.

THE UNIVERSITY UNITS

No 4 GENERAL HOSPITAL

IN February 1915 the University offered to provide a Base Hospital of 1,040 beds, the staff of which was to be manned from its members, and to contribute in a large measure to its equipment. The offer being accepted, the unit was quickly raised and after a farewell meeting in Convocation Hall sailed on May 15th under the command of Lt.-Col. J. A. Roberts, who had served in the South African War and had many years experience of Army Medical work. The original staff consisted of 38 officers. In addition were 73 nurses under Matron Hartley, who remained with the Hospital throughout. With few exceptions they came from the Toronto hospitals which were officially connected with the University. Among the 206 rank and file were many undergraduates.

Reaching England on May 28th the unit went to Shorncliffe, where it was allotted temporary quarters, till eventually it took over the Shorncliffe Military Hospital. During this period, however, most of the officers were detailed for special duties in hospitals or laboratories in London and elsewhere. In October they were reunited and left England for Salonica viâ Malta and Alexandria.

The Hospital arrived at its destination on November 10th, being the first General Hospital on the ground, and moved to its position on the Monastir Road about four miles west of Salonica. In some respects the hardest period of its service was during the first two or three months. Before the labour of unpacking, pitching tents, seeking a good water supply, and getting settled, in exceptionally cold and stormy weather, was completed the Retreat from Serbia had begun, and within a few days from their arrival some 600 patients were admitted.

Thanks chiefly to the generous support of its friends in the University and Province, the Hospital was the best furnished and equipped of all in the Salonica area. Being a University unit it had on its staff a number of officers who were especially qualified to conduct experiments and research. In consequence both in its laboratories and its X-ray department it largely met the needs of all the hospitals and became a scientific centre for the district. In its Dental department too it was much better equipped than other units and the Dental officers with their assistants were hard worked in meeting the demands made upon them.

On May 25th, 1916, the Hospital moved from its first position, where it had lived under canvas through the winter, to a new site at Kalamaria, a promontory to the south east of the town. The site in itself was healthier and more suitable, and the new quarters were constructed entirely of substantial wooden huts. On the highest part of the ground were the quarters for the officers, nurses and men. The administrative huts formed a line through the centre of the hospital proper. Branching off from this line to the north and south were the ward huts, those for surgical cases to the south, and those for medical cases to the north. The huts were mostly of uniform size, 140 feet long by 18 wide, with walls 9 feet high. The roofs were tiled, with an air space between them and the wooden ceilings. Next to No. 4 was No. 5 Canadian General Hospital from British Columbia.

The daily average number of patients was about 1,300. The majority of cases treated in the Hospital were medical, of men suffering from malaria, dysentery and other illnesses; but there were always many wounded men to tend, more perhaps than is commonly imagined. With the fiercer fighting in France the newspapers did not give much information on the long trench warfare with attacks and counter-attacks on the Balkan front.

During the two years at Salonica there were changes in the personnel of the unit. Col. Roberts, C.B., whose health had been affected, returned to England late in 1916. He was succeeded by Lt.-Col. W. B. Hendry, D.S.O., who had joined the Hospital when it was first organised and from now on remained in command till its disbandment. Other members of the staff were invalided or were recalled from time to time to take appointments elsewhere, being replaced by Canadian and Imperial officers sent from England. After nearly two years' stay the climate began to tell on the health of many, especially the nurses, and in August 1917 the order came to return to England.

Perhaps the work done by the Hospital while at Salonica will best be appreciated, not from a list of statistics or from technical descriptions, but from letters written by those who benefitted by the care and attention given them as patients, and by one of the Chaplains attached to the unit. The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Cavendish, C.F., wrote to the President in the spring of 1916:—

“I have the honour to bring to your notice the following facts, which I am sure will give great satisfaction to you and all concerned in Canada.

“I had the fortune of being attached temporarily for duty as Roman Catholic Chaplain to the No. 4 Canadian General Hospital. My stay there was short, but it was more than sufficient for me to form a true idea and to appreciate most highly the way in which the medical officers, the nurses and the orderlies carried out their various duties.

“I have had eighteen years of experience in military hospitals as Chaplain to the Forces, and I can say without hesitation that I have never seen hospital work performed with more order, efficiency and regularity than I saw it done there. I was more than edified by the scrupulous attention, devotion and self-sacrifice of the medical officers and nurses for their patients. These patients themselves saw this and were profoundly impressed by it, and could not help making special mention of it in their letters home to England, Ireland and Scotland, and to other countries in the Empire. One of my duties at the Hospital was to censor letters. In all the letters the patients sang their praises in honour of the medical officers, of the nurses and the Hospital in general. I could cite hundreds of such praises, but the following, I think, will be quite ample to show how deeply impressed the patients were by the excellent treatment which they received:—

“My dear Mother—It is a real blessing to be in this hospital. I assure you I will be sorry to leave it. You have no idea how well and how gently we are dealt with here.”

“My dearest L.—Had I been at home, I should not have had such splendid treatment as I am having here. . . . These doctors are very much superior, and yet they are most kind and friendly with us all. The nurses are also very good and devoted to us.”

“... These medical officers are very good and know their business well. They also give themselves great trouble to help us on the way to a speedy recovery and although the patients here are very numerous, over 1,300, still deaths are very few and far between. No doubt this shows the ability of the doctors. . . .”

“Dear Jamy—I am much taken by these Canadian officers at the hospital here. They are really a fine set of gentlemen. I really cannot praise them enough for what they do for us.”

“My dear Mother,—I was admitted in this hospital last month. I really believed then my hour had come. But thanks be to God for sending me to this hospital, where I have had the greatest attention and care. I am getting fine now, thanks to the medical officers and the nurses. O Mother, they are fine people these Canadians, God bless them all!”

“Personally I was also very much impressed with the unity that exists among the officers, a thing which is bound to have splendid results. I was sorry when I received orders to go to Salonica as Senior Chaplain, but shall always look back with pleasure to the happy days spent with Col. Roberts and all the other officers of the No. 4 Canadian General Hospital.”

PETER F. CAVENDISH, C.F.

In September 1917 the Hospital returned to England. The County Hospital for the Insane at Basingstoke, Hants., which was uncompleted in 1914 and had been temporarily used by the R.A.M.C. and the Australians, was secured and finished sufficiently to meet the immediate need. The members of the Hospital were brought in Italian ships from Salonica to Taranto. The voyage had been slow, since owing to the menace of submarines the vessels could only travel by night and put in for shelter by day. From Taranto the journey was continued by rail through Italy and France.

The Hospital's new home was situated on the Downs north of the town of Basingstoke and commanded a fine view. It had ample space and was fully equipped in every respect, with a central heating system, its own electric light plant and elaborate laundry and kitchen arrangements. Here the Hospital remained for nearly two years more, with an average of 1,200 patients, who were mostly Canadians.

Except in a technical account, it is easier to write on the history of the Hospital when it was on the Eastern front, and more difficult to do full justice to its service after it became established in England. But it should be said that during the latter two years both in its medical and its surgical work the Hospital became one of the most efficient units in the Service, and won enthusiastic appreciation in all quarters. The direct connection with the University, which inevitably had been somewhat broken in the later period of its stay in Salonica, was now reestablished and new relays of officers came directly from the University.

The records that follow give the honours won by individual members of the Hospital. In addition eighteen of the nurses were awarded the Royal Red Cross. The Hospital lost by death three of its staff—Captain Norman Yellowlees, its first Adjutant, who was drowned in the Vardar River in May 1916; Lt.-Col. W. J. O. Malloch, who died when home on leave in February 1919; and Nursing Sister Lena Aloa Davis, who after suffering from malaria at Salonica contracted blackwater fever and succumbed shortly after her return to England in 1917.

In June 1919 the Hospital's work was done and it returned to Canada. The formal return welcome took place in Convocation Hall, when addresses were made by the President, Dean Clarke and Col. Hendry. As it was on a Saturday afternoon in July, the gathering was not as large as it would have been at any time in the session. But in the brief proceedings the University voiced its grateful appreciation of the honour brought to it by those who through four years had faithfully done such fine service in its name.

THE UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S HOSPITAL SUPPLY ASSOCIATION

As soon as the University Hospital was officially authorised two committees were formed to provide the equipment needed over and above the government issues. The first, representing the Governors, Senate and Staff, arranged for the purchase of medical, surgical and laboratory apparatus. An appeal was made to the graduates and friends of the University, which received a prompt and generous response. The sum of 60,000 dollars was subscribed in a short time to provide the immediate needs. In addition four motor ambulances were given, two by Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Gooderham, one each by Mrs. J. F. W. Ross and Mrs. C. W. Beatty, a limousine by Mrs. Hoover and friends in Cleveland, Ohio, another motor car by Mr. Alfred Gross of Chicago, and a motor truck by Mr. White of Cleveland. For future maintenance a generous gift of 40,000 dollars was received from Mr. A. C. Hardy, himself a graduate of the University, Mrs. Hardy and Mrs. Fulford.

The second committee, which was composed of ladies connected with the University, proceeded to prepare the hospital clothing, bed linen, surgical dressings and all similar articles. For the immediate needs and for the surgical supplies throughout they drew from the general fund, but in addition they raised a second set of subscriptions for the purchase of all other materials and of machinery. Of those who subscribed in the first instance many continued their contributions monthly or annually till the end of the war.

The immediate work that lay before this committee, soon enlarged into an association, is indicated by the list of articles that the Hospital required at once: sheets 1,200; pillow cases 8,400; patients' towels 9,400; surgical towels 7,500; dish-cloths 1,100; slippers 500; socks 1,040 monthly; flannel shirts 1,500; surgical shirts 6,300; surgeons' gowns 800; small sheets 800; bed-jackets 1,000; dressing gowns 300; abdominal binders 400; laparotomy sheets 500.

The Association began work at once, and aided by many ladies in the City and Province had the articles ready in a short time. They then continued to keep up the supply of these and similar articles for future needs. The extent of the work is shewn by the fact that in the first year 3,340 cases, containing 124,000 articles were sent overseas, and this average was more than maintained for the next three years. At first the bulk of the articles went to the University Hospital, but after it reached Salónica it was for the present adequately equipped and for further needs could more conveniently draw from the supplies at the local base. Consequently it was arranged that all the Association's output should be sent to the Canadian Red Cross, and a portion of it directed through this agency to the French hospitals. Supplies were also sent to the Canadian Field Comforts Commission, the French Secours National and similar organisations. At first a special committee of the ladies worked apart on preparing surgical supplies. Later when the full amount required was provided the members of this committee returned to co-operate with the general Association, but resumed their special work for a time in the autumn of 1917 in response to a request from the University Hospital when it was being established at Basingstoke. The University Women's Club also worked with this committee in preparing sphagnum moss.

The Association's service was twofold. A large amount of work was done in the central work-rooms at the University which were equipped with the necessary machines. It also provided a clearing house for the work done by many auxiliary agencies. The materials were purchased by the Association in large quantities at a time, and so with a considerable saving of expense. Individual volunteers or associated groups representing churches, schools and societies then took the materials and made them up. Several of these auxiliaries also subscribed to the funds of the Association.

The officers of the Association were:—President, Lady Falconer; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. W. H. Ellis, Mrs. A. L. McCrimmon of McMaster University; Treasurer, Mrs. F. N. G. Starr (1915-1918), Mrs. W. A. Parks (1918-1919); Secretary, Mrs. V. E. Henderson; Representing Colleges and Faculties, Mrs. A. Baker, Mrs. C. K. Clarke, Mrs. F. H. Wallace, Mrs. J. C. Robertson, Mrs. A. L. Langford, Mrs. H. T. F. Duckworth, Miss Hutton, Mrs. B. E. Fernow, Mrs. W. Pakenham, Mrs. W. E. Willmott, Mrs. E. A. A. Grange, Mrs. C. Heebner, Mrs. T. R. O'Meara; Honorary Members, Lady Walker, the late Mrs. R. A. Reeve, Mrs. J. A. Roberts; Officers of special committees:—Finance, Mrs. G. M. Wrong, Miss Hutton, Mrs. G. C. Robertson; Work, Mrs. B. A. Bensley, Mrs. C. L. Starr; Work-room Secretary, Miss Evelyn E. Henderson; Publicity, Mrs. A. McPhedran; Purchasing, Mrs. K. C. McIlwraith; Packing, Mrs. F. B. Kenrick, Mrs. Brefney O'Reilly; Surgical Supplies, Mrs. H. T. Machell, Dr. Margaret Johnston.

At the final meeting of the Association in March 1919 it was reported that the total receipts of subscriptions for its work were 121,000 dollars; total disbursements 117,000 dollars; the balance was given to furnishing officers' quarters in the Christie Street Hospital. 347,392 articles of hospital clothing, linen, etc., were sent overseas, and 1,808,257 articles of surgical supplies.

The service rendered by the Association in the relief of suffering and repairing of the war's injuries cannot be estimated solely by the large subscriptions raised or the amount of articles prepared and sent overseas, but must also be judged by the long hours of willing and cheerful labour spent week in and week out, often at considerable personal sacrifice, by those who still had their home duties to perform. Many too had their special anxieties to face, with husbands, sons and brothers overseas. In this common effort the ladies of the University and their associates also did an invaluable service to the University itself, by bringing it into closer contact with the women of the Province and the City, who made the Association's cause their own.

THE CANADIAN OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS

The University of Toronto Contingent of the C.O.T.C. was organised in October 1914. It was not the first military unit connected with this University. From 1861 onwards for over thirty years 'K' Company of the Second Regiment, Queen's Own Rifles, was known as the University Company. For a time there was a Trinity College Company in addition. Among the officers of 'K' Company were the late Professors Croft (1862-67), Cherriman (1862-73), Ellis (1866-76), and Professors Van der Smissen (1872-78) and Baker (1876-83). The Company took part in the resistance to the Fenian Raid of 1866, when three of its members fell at Ridgeway, J. H. Mewburn, Malcolm Mackenzie and William F. Tempest, in whose memory the window was set up in the East Hall. Destroyed in the fire of 1890, it was replaced by the present window which reproduces the original design. The Company again served in the North West campaign of 1885. Soon afterwards the University's direct connection with the Regiment ceased, but the records shew that in the following years many students and graduates both of the University and Trinity College served in this Company of the Queen's Own. Captain R. K. Barker, who commanded the Toronto company of the Canadian contingent in the South African war, was both an officer of the Regiment and a graduate of the University.

For a brief period after August 4th, 1914, the old connection was renewed. At a meeting, called by the late Dean W. H. Ellis and others, University men were called on to begin training at once in one of the City Regiments. Among those who were active in promoting this movement was the late Errol B. Platt of the Queen's Own. A University Company of this unit was established and began training in the evenings under Captain F. L. Burton. Several of those who then joined continued with the Regiment till they went overseas. Others transferred later to the C.O.T.C.

In 1897 the late President Loudon requested a committee to consider the formation of a new Militia unit to be recruited from the University. Not long afterwards the Second Field Company of the Canadian Engineers was organised, in which many undergraduates were trained in the following years under Professor W. R. Lang. In the Engineers of the C.E.F. were many who had received their first training in this unit.

About the same time the Field Hospital and Field Ambulance Corps were organised, to become the nucleus of the present C.A.M.C. The commanders of two of the four Toronto Field Hospital Companies were Dr. J. T. Fotheringham and the late Dr. A. Y. Scott. Other members of the University or of Trinity Medical College were active in Army Medical service, notably Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, who had served both in the North West and in South Africa.

The Committee appointed by Dr. Loudon continued its efforts to secure the authorisation of a University Battalion. When the Officers Training Corps was established in Great Britain it was agreed that a similar body should be organised in Canada. Eventually the Corps was authorised and the first Contingent was raised at McGill University in 1912. The establishment of a Toronto Contingent was delayed by difficulties in reaching an agreement with the Department of Militia and Defence for the provision of a site for Armouries.

ORGANISATION, OF THE CORPS

The crisis of 1914 demanded immediate action, and without further delay the Contingent was authorised. In September a delegation representing the Universities of Canada visited Ottawa to ascertain in what way they could best serve the country at war. It had been suggested that overseas units should at once be raised from the Universities, but the Government definitely replied that immediate needs would be better served by their providing units for training from which a supply of officers and non-commissioned officers could be drawn for the battalions of the C.E.F. as they were established.

The regulations of the Corps implied that training for proficiency certificates 'A' and 'B', to qualify the holders for appointments as Lieutenant and Captain respectively in the Infantry, should be carried on for at least two years and concurrently with academic studies. Membership in the Corps was also to be open to any who should wish to take the general training without the advanced work. These were to be known as 'efficiency' candidates. The history of the Corps in the next three years shews a large preponderance of the latter class, and the number of the proficiency certificates obtained does not bear a very large proportion to the whole. The regulations had been drawn up for peace times, and owing to the immediate exigencies of the war and the abnormally large enlistment in the Corps modifications in practice had to be made. Many members enlisted at once in the ranks of the C.E.F., and in various branches of the service. Others received commissions in the C.E.F. battalions, and as immediate qualification was required, took shorter intensive courses in the District Schools of Infantry. Others again found it necessary to qualify during the long vacations of 1915 and 1916, when the Corps was not in operation. But it may reasonably be claimed that all its members learnt from their training in the Corps the first and not least important elements of military efficiency in all arms of the Service.

Early in September a few members of the teaching staff who were in Toronto began daily training under Lieut. G. N. Bramfitt, C.E., and these formed the nucleus of the body of instructors for the Corps. Lt.-Col. W. R. Lang, being in England in August, was recalled to Canada to supervise all the military instruction in the Toronto District, and in addition was shortly afterwards appointed Commander of the Corps. The University Rifle Association afforded a provisional organisation and its rifles were used till a full supply was available. Formal authorisation was announced on November 2nd to take effect from October 15th, but within a few days after term opened nearly 2,000 students were drilling on the grounds on every afternoon after 4 o'clock. Though many had had some training with the Cadet Corps and some in the Active Militia, more had to learn the work from the beginning. The assistance of a few Sergeant Instructors from Headquarters was available, but for the most part the detailed instruction had to be given by those whose own training had begun not long before or had been suddenly revived after several years' intermission. The difficulties were many, but enthusiasm and application compensated for want of experience.

The members of the Battalion Staff were:—Officer Commanding, Lt.-Col. W. R. Lang; Majors, C. S. McVicar and A. D. LePan; Adjutant, Capt. G. N. Bramfitt; Quarter-Master, Lieut. C. H. C. Wright; Paymaster, Lieut. F. B. Kenrick; Musketry Officer, Captain V. E. Henderson; Signalling Officer, Lieut. R. H. Hopkins, 45th Regt., attached; Battalion Sergeant-Major, J. F. Christie; Quarter-Master Sergeant, W. Hunt.

Nine companies were first authorised, but three more were added before Christmas. They were arranged according to Faculties and Colleges:—A. and B., University College (with Knox), Captains G. H. Needler and M. W. Wallace; C. and D., Victoria, Captains C. V. Massey and G. M. Smith; E., Trinity, Wycliffe and St. Michael's, Captain E. J. Kylie; F. and G., Medicine, Captains E. S. Ryerson and W. F. McPhedran; H., I. and K., Applied Science (with Forestry), Captains C. R. Young, A. W. McConnell, and H. H. Madill; L., Dental College, Captain V. E. Henderson; M., Education and McMaster University, Captain W. S. Wallace. In the companies were also twenty-three subalterns drawn partly from the teaching staff, partly from the student body.

Through the Michaelmas term the usual courses of first training and mutual instruction were taken, and lectures were given by the senior officers. The weather was unusually fine throughout and a number of successful field days were held on Saturdays. On January 22nd, 1915, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught held the first inspection of the Corps. The arrangements had to be made on short notice and the Corps had only begun battalion drill a few days before. Despite the brief practice and the confined space of the Armouries the 1,500 men on parade acquitted themselves well and were highly commended by the Governor General. On April 10th and 13th the Corps was inspected by the Officer Commanding the Military District and 1,359 were declared efficient. Already the numbers were diminishing owing to enlistments for overseas service.

On May 3rd 709 members of the Corps went into camp for twelve days at Niagara-on-the-Lake. The camp was held in conjunction with the McGill O.T.C., and was commanded by the late Lt.-Col. W. C. Macdonald. As the period was short the men were kept hard at work on the camp grounds or at the rifle ranges with but little intermission till late in the day, and on some evenings lectures were given. On May 12th a tactical exercise was carried out against a skeleton force. May 13th was given to ceremonial. In the morning the movements were rehearsed before Major-General Lessard, and in the afternoon both contingents were reviewed by H.R.H. the Governor General. On the 14th a tactical exercise was carried out on a larger scale in conjunction with the McGill Corps and the Ridley College Cadets. The day concluded with a brief inspection by the Minister of Militia. The written work for Certificate 'A' had been taken in April, and the practical examinations were held in the camp. 153 candidates passed, nearly all of whom went on active service immediately afterwards.

At the opening of the next session 640 old members returned and 1,141 recruits were enrolled. Some changes were made to fill vacancies among the officers. Major McVicar and Captain Ryerson having left in the spring with the University Hospital, Major LePan became Second in command, and Captain L. Gilchrist took command of F. Company. Captain C. N. Cochrane took charge of the Victoria College companies, as Captain Massey was now on the District Musketry Staff and Captain Smith was overseas. Lieuts. G. S. Brett and W. E. Willmott succeeded Captains Kylie and Henderson respectively when the latter went on active service. Captain F. B. Kenrick became Musketry Officer, and Mr. T. A. Reed was appointed Paymaster and Assistant Adjutant, taking charge of the Orderly Room work and all the Corps records. An additional company was authorised under the command of Captain A. Foulds and later of Lieut. N. M. Macleod, and was recruited from graduates and others in the city. A large number of men from the Ontario Veterinary College joined I. Company, which was commanded by Captain Kenrick after Captain McConnell went on active service. Some members of the teaching staff had enlisted in the previous year. Now many more joined and half of K. Company became known as the 'Staff Platoon'.

The usual training was carried out through the session, and at the end of the year 125 members obtained proficiency certificates. At the annual Inspection 949 were on parade, the Corps having lost nearly half its numbers through enlistments for overseas during the session. At the end of 1915 the first draft of C.O.T.C. candidates for commissions in the Imperial Army had left. After the Overseas Training Company was organised at the end of the session the work of training these candidates was transferred to it and will be described in the next section.

1916-1917

By the end of the summer of 1916 nearly all the higher officers were on duty elsewhere. Col. Lang was on the General Staff of the District. Major Massey was in command of the District School of Musketry, and Captain Cochrane was on its staff. Captains Needler and Wallace were in charge of the Overseas Training Company. Captains McConnell and Gilchrist had gone overseas. Major LePan, was in command of the District School of Infantry, and Captains Bramfitt, Young, Kenrick, and Madill were on the Instructional cadre. Later Major LePan organised and trained the Polish Army at Niagara in the years 1917 and 1918, sending in all 20,720 Poles overseas. Associated with him from the University were Captains Young, Kenrick, Madill and Kirk.

Owing to the reduced attendance in College the Corps was reorganised on a much smaller scale, the enrolment being now 524, mostly freshmen, and the training was carried on by the junior officers. Special Signalling classes were arranged for those who had previously taken the ordinary courses.

The Government grants to Militia units having been suspended, the Corps in one sense ceased to operate for the last year of the war. But its machinery and equipment were used for the training of the students who were now taking courses under the new compulsory scheme mentioned before. The actual instruction of the men, however, was given for the most part by returned N.C.O.'s and members of the Army Gymnastic staff, under the supervision of Captain Blake-Forster, formerly of the 3rd Battalion, and special attention was paid to physical training. At the same time the life of the Corps was, as it were, being continued in the Training Company whose work is shortly to be described.

Since the close of the war the Corps has been reorganised on a reduced establishment to suit peace time conditions, and its work has been fitted in with that of the Department of Military Studies. Naturally its numbers are still small, when so large a proportion of the men now in attendance are already qualified by overseas service. But as time goes by each new generation will supply its quota of recruits to become officers in the Militia, and the Corps may look forward to a future of increasing usefulness in the service of the country.

THE UNIVERSITY OVERSEAS TRAINING COMPANY

The beginnings of the Company antedate its official authorisation by three months. In December 1915 it was announced that the War Office would accept as candidates for commissions in the Imperial Army members of the C.O.T.C., and others of like qualifications, who should be nominated by the Commanding Officer of the Corps and be approved by the Chief of the General Staff in Canada. The first candidates were selected after personal interviews by Major-General Willoughby Gwatkin and left Toronto on the last day of the year. A second draft was chosen in February 1916.

In March 1916 the establishment of an Overseas Training Company of the C.O.T.C. was authorised. It was to be a unit of the C.E.F., and its members were liable to be called on for service in any unit or rank by the Canadian authorities; but subject to this condition it was arranged that all candidates for Imperial commissions should from then onwards receive their preliminary training in the Company. Officers of other units wishing to apply first joined the ranks of the Company.

Professor G. H. Needler, who as a student of University College had seen service in the North West in 1885, was appointed Commanding Officer. Professor M. W. Wallace was Second in command, and the subalterns were Messrs H. A. C. Breuls, L. R. Shoebottom, and H. W. Reid, undergraduates of the University. A. L. Huether became Company Sergeant-Major, and G. W. Kaiser Company Quarter-Master Sergeant. J. P. S. Nethercott, V. W. Armstrong, T. H. Jameson, T. W. G. Ashbourne, and the late H. W. M. Cumming were the first Sergeants.

Only members of this and other Universities or those who had equivalent educational standing were accepted. Recruits came from all parts of Canada and some from further afield in the Empire. Not a few were British residents in the United States. The members of the Company took the regular training required for officers of the C.E.F., and many took the qualifying examinations at the District School of Infantry. Though on arrival in England the candidates for commissions had to take further courses and examinations, their previous training often enabled them to shorten the courses and many passed their final examinations with distinction. From time to time groups were sent to take courses in bayonet-fighting, bombing, machine gun work, etc., at the special schools at Camp Borden and elsewhere. The men left the Company after an average of eight months' training for various destinations. Some became officers or N.C.O.'s in the Canadian units that were being raised in 1916 and 1917. Others joined the Royal Flying Corps or the Royal Naval Air Service, especially in the earlier days before the Flying School was established in Toronto. Others were sent temporarily or transferred permanently as Instructors to other units in the Military District, such as the Polish Army at Niagara. In the spring of 1918 the First Canadian Universities' Tank Battalion was raised. Nearly the whole of the Toronto Company, which was commanded by Major Wilfrid Mavor, M.C., and officered by members of the University, was recruited from the Training Company. The battalion went overseas in June, and with its training completed was about to cross to France, when the Armistice was signed.

But the largest group was made up of those who were chosen for Imperial commissions. They were only accepted after careful selection. They were first recommended by the Officer Commanding the Company and were then examined by Col. W. R. Lang. If approved by him each candidate was required to have a personal interview with General Gwatkin, and only when his final approval was obtained was the applicant accepted. General Gwatkin took great personal interest in the work of the Company throughout and came to Toronto for the final selection of each draft. In all 334 candidates from the Company were sent over and the last draft was on its way overseas when the war ended.¹

The total enrolment of the Company was 1,053 men, who were eventually distributed as follows:—to Imperial commissions 334; to the Flying Services 118; C.E.F. commissions 73; C.E.F., N.C.O.'s and other ranks 53; to the Tank Battalion 201; to the Siberian Expeditionary Force 31; miscellaneous 24; discharged medically unfit 33; discharged on demobilisation 184. Two members died while on service in the Company.

¹In addition 87 candidates for these commissions went overseas before the Company was fully organised, making a total of 421 from the C.O.T.C.

Major Needler and Captain Wallace remained in charge of the Company throughout. When the first subalterns went overseas early in 1917 two of the Sergeants were promoted to succeed them, T. H. Jameson and J. P. S. Nethercott. When later these were appointed to the Tank Battalion, Lieuts. G. V. Laughton, M.C., P. K. Heywood and W. W. Lang, members of the University who had returned from overseas, took their places. After A. L. Huether went overseas in the spring of 1917, the Company Sergeant-Majors in succession were S. Butt, J. P. Henderson, and F. W. Uden, D.C.M., formerly of the 58th Battalion.

During the two years and seven months of its history the Company, with an average strength of 150, lived in barracks at Burwash Hall and trained in the University grounds, thus retaining a close connection with the University throughout. This book contains the personal records of only those who were before enlistment members of the University or have become such since their return. But there were many others who, though not academically University of Toronto men, in many ways shared its life for a time, and the University is not unmindful of or ungrateful for the part which they played while bearing its name both here and at the front.

THE 67th BATTERY, CANADIAN FIELD ARTILLERY

When the question of raising a combatant unit from the University was discussed early in 1916, it appeared that most of those who wished to enlist in the ranks preferred the Artillery. Accordingly the 67th, University of Toronto, Battery was authorised, and recruiting began on March 29th. In two or three weeks it reached full strength, almost all the recruits being students or graduates. Later the proportion of actual members of the University to those drawn from other sources was not so large, but of the latter class many had University connections and some have entered as students since their return. The Battery retained its connection with the University throughout, and it was enacted that its officers should be graduates and their nominations approved by the President.

The first recruits were disappointed to learn that it was to be a depot battery, and consequently that they could not go to France as a unit. But while serving in it College friends and associates were enabled to live and work together, often for several months. After going overseas the men of the successive drafts were distributed among various front line units, but as a rule each man found with him a few comrades who had trained with him in Canada.

The first Commander of the Battery was Lieut. W. J. T. Wright, son of Professor C. H. C. Wright, and himself a graduate and a member of the staff. The initial work of recruiting and training the unit was done under his direction. Except for a part of the summer of 1916, when Captain E. P. Johnston was in command, Lieut. Wright was in charge of the Battery for nearly a year. Associated with him at first were Lieuts. J. Newton, a former Captain of the University Football team, and W. Bowles, son of the Chancellor of Victoria College.

The first draft of fifty men left for overseas on June 15th under the late Lieut. J. J. Campbell, who had enlisted as a gunner and then been promoted. The second draft, also of fifty men, left on July 12th with Lieut. Bowles in charge. Early in August the Battery went to Niagara for training and at the end of the month to Petawawa, where it remained till the late fall. Before it returned to Toronto another draft, of 96 men, left for overseas under Lieuts. Newton and H. Irwin. Through the winter of 1916-1917 the unit trained at Exhibition Camp. Lieut. Wright took a draft overseas in February, and Lieut. J. L. McCullough another in the spring.

The new Commander of the Battery was Captain R. J. Orde of Trinity College, who had enlisted in August 1914 and had served as an officer in the R.F.A. in France and Mesopotamia until he was invalided home. He remained in charge through the summer of 1917, but was then forced to resign by ill health. He was succeeded by Captain H. E. Cawley, of Trinity College and Applied Science, who also had enlisted in August 1914 and served in France for a year and a half. He had received his commission on the field after the battle of St. Julien, and continued to serve till he was wounded at the battle of Zillebeke. He remained in command of the unit until the end of the war.

Further drafts were sent over, in the summer of 1917 under Lieut. C. Fraser Elliott, in November 1917 under Lieut. H. D. Wallace, and in March 1918 under Lieut. R. W. Hart. Smaller drafts also left from time to time. In the summer of 1918 Lieuts. R. D. Huestis, D. Huycke, and Gordon Lees, all of whom had been invalided home from France, joined the Battery. In September the Battery and the others of its brigade, Nos. 69, 70 and 71, were merged in No. 2 Artillery Depot. From this the Second Canadian Tank Battalion was raised and went overseas in the autumn.

The efficiency of a depot unit, where changes of personnel are frequent, depends in no small measure on its more permanent N.C.O.'s as well as on its officers. From the summer of 1916 A. E. Jennings was Battery Sergeant-Major. When he obtained his commission in 1918 he was succeeded by B. S. M. Frank Pritchard. The Battery Quarter-Master Sergeants in succession were A. J. Loughheed, H. J. Vallentyne, and P. J. Avison. Sergeants P. F. McIntyre, G. M. Shrum, P. S. McLean, and the late J. W. McDowell did valuable work in the first year before they went overseas. The Orderly Room Sergeants were H. Waugh and Stuart MacDonald, and, after they went overseas, W. H. McDowell. Sergeants H. Nightingale and A. C. Garwood were with the unit during 1917 and 1918. A. Blyth was Pay Sergeant from March 1916 to November 1918, and the writer is indebted to him for several details of the Battery's history.

The 67th was the only Artillery unit that was officially connected with the University and it alone is described in detail here. Three other batteries, however, will always be associated in memory with the University. In the records that follow the 25th, 26th, and 43rd Batteries occur frequently. The first two were raised in March 1915, and a section of each was recruited for the most part here. They reached France in January 1916. The 25th served through the war to the end. The 26th was broken up in the spring of 1917, and its members transferred mostly to the 17th or 18th Batteries. The 43rd was raised early in 1916 and reached France in July and served as a unit at the front for two and a half years. Not a few University men remained with these batteries throughout.

THE UNIVERSITIES COMPANIES, PRINCESS PATRICIA'S CANADIAN LIGHT INFANTRY

Early in 1915 the Regiment had been in action and was in need of reinforcements. Being originally recruited from various parts of the Dominion and not being a territorial unit, it had no special source from which reinforcements could be quickly raised. To meet the need an Overseas Company, temporarily attached to the 38th Battalion, was raised in McGill University from its own students and those of other Colleges with their friends, and began training in Montreal under Captain Gregor Barclay. In May this unit came with the McGill C.O.T.C. to Niagara Camp, where the University of Toronto Corps was also completing its year's training. It had already been proposed that all the Universities of Canada should officially co-operate in this movement, and a second company of like character had been authorised. Before the camp closed it was definitely arranged that the University of Toronto C.O.T.C. should join in raising men, two of its officers being chosen to command platoons in the Company, Lieut. G. M. Smith and the late Lieut. D. G. Hagarty. Recruiting began at once in Niagara and was continued in Toronto. The Company mobilised in Montreal, the recruits going there as soon as attested. They were quartered in the McGill Union and used the College grounds for training. Enlistment was not confined to University men, but only those of a like educational standing were accepted. Those in the ranks were all men of the same type and able to learn the work quickly. Congenial companionship and the opportunity of reaching the front in a short time proved strong incentives to enlistment.

The First Company had gone overseas in May, and on June 28th the Second Company sailed from Montreal under the command of Capt. George McDonald and the late Capt. Percival Molson of McGill, both of whom had done much to initiate the whole effort. Their fine spirit proved both in Canada and in Flanders a great inspiration to all with whom they worked.

The raising of the first two Companies had been so immediately successful that it was agreed to continue the plan, and during the remainder of 1915 and part of 1916 the Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Companies were raised. Till he himself went on active service, the late Captain Edward Kylie acted as recruiting officer for the University of Toronto. The training of the companies was carried on at Montreal under the command of Major A. S. Eve, and later of Major C. M. McKergow, both members of the McGill teaching staff. The University of Toronto officers chosen for these later units were the late Lieut. J. R. Mitchener, and Lieuts. H. W. Cheney, C. C. Robinson, P. K. Heywood and A. B. Fennell.

The First Company had gone to France in July 1915, and the men of the Second followed after only nine weeks' training. Those of the Third and Fourth went over early in 1916; those of the Fifth and Sixth went with the reinforcements after the battle of Sanctuary Wood. In that battle the Regiment's personnel was largely that of the Universities Companies. In the battalion itself the men were distributed where they were needed and the Companies lost their identity, but many who had enlisted and trained together were not separated in the trenches.

In all over 1,400 men were recruited from or through the Universities of Canada for the Regiment and shared in its work and fame at Sanctuary Wood, Courcellette, Vimy, Lens and Passchendaele. By the opening of 1918 but few of those recruited from this source were left in the ranks. Many had fallen on the field; others had been wounded or invalided; some had been transferred to other units. Several won their commissions in the Regiment by service on the field. Of those that remained some were killed in the later fighting of that year, one of the last to fall being Sergt. M. Douglas Schell. A few were destined to reach Mons on November 11th, and to return to Ottawa, where the Regiment was demobilised on March 17th, 1919.

IT is, perhaps, more difficult to estimate aright the services rendered by an institution than those of individuals through a time of stress and trial. In giving the records of the men who fell in action or bore wound stripes or won decorations, and of all those whose names are in this Roll of Service, it is not easy to determine the precise share that their Alma Mater may claim in their fame. Yet if to her they brought great honour, without vain boasting it may be said that to them she gave something of value. The training which they received here was a preparation for the work that lay before them.

Many of those who went and many who remained will acknowledge that to all those who guided the University's destinies here they owe much for an example of personal service, for words of wise counsel, for encouragement in despondency, for sympathy in sorrow through the darkest days.

Any attempt to characterise the spirit of the University as shewn through these years is difficult. But something may be learnt from letters received from the front or from those who suffered loss. The writer has read many a letter sent home by a University man when another, his fellow student in arms, fell in action—from whom sometimes he himself was destined to be not long divided in death. They reveal how happy both were in their friendship, and happier because it was formed or continued within these walls.

Those also who suffered loss have something to tell us, lest in later days we should forget. From many letters of a like spirit these passages are chosen. They were written by a young widow, herself a graduate, by a graduate father who lost two student sons, and by two other fathers, one of whom also gave both his sons in the cause:—

“I think we all feel that we must, in whatever way we can, pass on the high ideals of our men to those who come after. For so many of them there are no children to ‘carry on’, and the coming University students must be made to feel that they are their spiritual children.”

“I want to thank the University authorities for their unfailing kindness to my three sons during their courses in the University. I am sure they were grateful, and could the latter two now tell you, they would say that the noble ideals which inspired their lives to the very last were in great part due to the high motives that have characterised the work of the University.”

“We who loved him hoped that his life would bring glory to his University; little did we think it would be by a glorious death. We are greatly comforted and consoled at this time by the generous praise and affection expressed in letters from his many friends. As for your letter, we appreciate it, not less, but all the more that it is from a stranger. It seems to me there is one thing, among many, this war has taught us—that sympathy and understanding are the real bond of friendship, that this is not limited to one's relatives, but that those who share a like spirit with us are our kinsmen."

"The University of Toronto has indeed a sad but glorious record of the war in its exceedingly long Roll of Honour. The work of the Universities, not only in Canada but throughout all English speaking countries, in training their alumni in those ideals of sacrifice to duty which sent them forth as leaders in distant fields should never be lost sight of; and perhaps those long sad Rolls will play an important part in the welding together of our people for centuries to come. In peace, as in war, one people!"

ROLL OF HONOUR

Killed in Action or
Died on Service

I N Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie,
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

JOHN MCCRAE.

ROLL OF HONOUR

ERIC MONTAGUE ABENDANA July 10, 1892—Oct. 16, 1918

Lieutenant, Canadian Engineers.

Son of J. M. Abendana; b. Port Antonio, Jamaica; ed. St. Andrew's College; Applied Science, 1900-14, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); Theta Delta Chi; St. Mary's Cement Co.

He was appointed to the Canadian Engineers in January 1916, and went overseas with the 4th Divisional Engineers the following June. In England he was seconded for duty under the War Office in charge of the construction of aerodromes. On rejoining the Engineers, 14th Field Company, he went to France in the spring of 1918, and was transferred to the 2nd Battalion, C.E., in July. Three months later he died of pleurisy at No. 4 Casualty Clearing Station. Buried at Duisans, Etrun.

COLEMAN BOYD ADAMS June 13, 1895—Aug. 15, 1917

Lieutenant, First Battalion.

Son of James H. Adams; b. Hanover; ed. Hanover P.S., Owen Sound C.I.; Victoria College, 1912-15; College Rugby and Hockey teams; C.O.T.C.; 31st Regt., Lieut.

In October 1915 he was appointed to the 147th, Grey County, Battalion, and went overseas in November 1916. At the end of the year he joined the 1st Battalion in France. He served through the battle of Vimy Ridge and the following engagements before Lens. On the day of the capture of Hill 70 he was returning from the front lines after the advance, when a shell struck, instantly killing him and the Corporal who was with him. Buried at Bully-Grenay.

JOSEPH REGINALD ADAMS June 9, 1896—Nov. 26, 1917

Private, Eighth Battalion.

Son of the Rev. G. K. B. Adams; b. Toronto; ed. Brantford P.S., Victoria, B.C., P.S., and H.S., Winnipeg H.S.; Wesley College, Winnipeg; Victoria College, 1912-16, B.A., (Pol. Sc.); College Rugby, Hockey, Tennis teams; C.O.T.C.

In February 1916, he was appointed as Lieutenant to the 141st Battalion. When later the number of officers was reduced he reverted to the ranks and thence won his promotion to Company Sergeant-Major before the battalion went overseas in April 1917. To reach France he again reverted to Private and joined the 8th Battalion in June. After service before Lens through the summer, he was severely wounded at Passchendaele on November 11th, a shell bursting near by just as his section had reached its objective. Two weeks later he died in hospital at Etaples, and was buried in the British cemetery there.

WILLIAM HARVEY AGGETT April 25, 1895—Nov. 6, 1917

Lieutenant, Fourth Battalion.

Son of John T. Aggett; b. Toronto; ed. Rosedale P.S., Jarvis Street C.I., Toronto; Applied Science, 1913-15; Second Rugby and Hockey colours; C.O.T.C.

In March 1915, with a large number of University men, he enlisted in the 25th Battery, 7th Brigade, C.F.A., and went overseas in July. After transferring in England to the 23rd Howitzer Battery, 5th Brigade, he went to France in January 1916, and served in this unit on the Messines front and then through the battles of St. Eloi and Zillebeke—Mount Sorrel. In July he was wounded in the knee and fractured his ankle at Armentières. On his recovery he received his commission in the 4th Infantry Battalion, with which he served at Vimy and through the fighting before Lens and Hill 70. At Passchendaele he was instantly killed while leading his platoon forward from Bellevue Spur to reinforce the 1st Battalion. Buried west of Passchendaele.

JAMES DOUGLAS AIKEN May 27, 1890—Nov. 9, 1916

Second Lieutenant, Royal Field Artillery.

Son of the late J. H. Aiken; b. Cape Town, S. Africa; ed. St. Mary's P.S., London P.S. and C.I.; Medicine, 1911-12; Forestry, 1912-16, B.Sc.F.; C.O.T.C.

He left Canada on January 1st, 1916, with the first draft of C.O.T.C. candidates for Imperial commissions. After training with the R. Horse Artillery, he reached France in February and was attached to a Trench Mortar Battery of the R. Field Artillery, 14th Division. In April he was mentioned in Divisional Report for his efficient work. He served near Arras until August, when he was invalided for a month. He then rejoined his battery on the Somme front. Shortly after its return to the Arras front he died from injuries received in a premature explosion while the battery was in action. Buried at Arras.

FREDERICK STANLEY ALBRIGHT March 23, 1883—Oct. 26, 1917

Private, Fiftieth Battalion.

Son of J. D. Albright; b. South Cayuga; ed. Beamsville P.S., Model School; Victoria College, 1904-08, B.A. (Pol. Sc.); Hodgins Prize; Editor, 'Acta Victoriana'; Law course in Calgary; Thompson Prize; Barrister at Calgary, firm of Clarke, Carson, Macleod & Co.; Lecturer in Law at Calgary for University of Alberta; md. Evelyn Kelly, B.A.

He had already won a prominent position in civil life, but though a higher rank was open to him, he chose to enlist as a Private, hoping to induce others to do the same. In June 1916 he joined the 191st Battalion and took an active part in recruiting for it. He was promoted Sergeant in October. After reverting, in September 1917 to the rank of Private, he joined the 50th Battalion in France. A few weeks later he was killed in the battle of Passchendaele. For six days his platoon held the line in a badly exposed position, from which only a few returned alive. Buried at Passchendaele.

HUBERT GORDON ALLAN April 22, 1886—April 7, 1915

Lieutenant, Y.M.C.A., B.E.F.

Son of J. A. Allan, K.C.; b. Perth; ed. Perth C.I.; University College, 1905-09, B.A. (Eng. and Hist.—Cl.); M.A., 1913; Third Year President; Secretary, University Y.M.C.A.

He was taking a B.D. course at Edinburgh when the war began. He went to France in December with the British Y.M.C.A., having previously offered himself for service with the regular forces. After more than three months of very hard work in the Dieppe—Le Tréport area he was taken suddenly ill and died two days later. Buried at Le Tréport.

HENRY HAROLD ALLEN Sept. 30, 1878—June 17, 1915

Corporal, Eighty-first Battalion.

Son of Henry Allen; b. Stayner; ed. Stayner P.S.; Trinity College, 1903-05, B.A. (Hist. and Pol. Sc.); M.A., McMaster University; B.D. Queen's University; Presbyterian Minister at Aurora; md. Hannah Freeman Carruthers.

In September 1915 he enlisted in the Stretcher-bearer section of the 81st Battalion, and went overseas in April 1916. Shortly after arriving at Shorncliffe he died suddenly in Moore Barracks Hospital. Buried at Shorncliffe.

SAMUEL HALL ALLEN March 17, 1892—Oct. 12, 1917

Lieutenant, Ninety-seventh Battalion and Royal Flying Corps.

Son of Alexander W. Allen; b. Port Huron, Mich.; ed. Wallaceburg P.S. and H.S., Harbord Street C.I., Toronto; University College, 1913-15; C.O.T.C.

Early in 1915 he enlisted in the Eaton Machine Gun Battery, and later obtained a commission in the 97th Battalion. He went overseas in October 1916, and after serving for a time as instructor in bombing at Shorncliffe, transferred to the R. Flying Corps. He reached France in July 1917 and joined the 57th Squadron. Shortly afterwards he was injured in a crash, his machine controls having been shot away. Not long after his return to duty he was reported as missing. He had flown over the lines and failed to return. Later a German report stated that he had been killed on October 12th and was buried at Roslaere.

THOMAS WILLIAM EDWARD ALLEN July 25, 1890—June 13, 1917

Private, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of the Rev. Canon William C. Allen; b. Millbrook; ed. Trinity College School; Teaching at Lakefield Preparatory School; Trinity College, 1907-08.

He enlisted in the West in July 1916 with the 6th Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and joined the battalion in France early in 1917. He served with the Lewis-gun section through the battle of Vimy Ridge and the subsequent fighting. On the night of June 12th, when returning with a water party to the front line, he was fatally wounded by a shell and died in No. 7 Casualty Clearing Station early the next morning. Buried at Nœux-les-Mines.

ELTON CULBERT ALLIN Nov. 24, 1886—May 10, 1917

Lieutenant, Forty-fourth Battalion.

Son of the late J. L. Allin; b. Bowmanville; ed. Lindsay P.S. and C.I.; Victoria College, 1906-09, 1910-11; Law Student at Regina, firm of Barr, Sampson & Stewart; md. Annie M. Cross.

In May 1916 he was appointed to the 203rd Battalion and went overseas in October. He joined the 44th Battalion in France on May 1st, 1917. Ten days later, when his battalion was preparing for the attack on the Triangle, he was killed by a shell near Givenchy as he was going up to the front line to relieve a wounded officer. Buried at Villers-au-Bois.

JOHN OLIVER ALLISON Oct. 8, 1891—May 15, 1918

Lieutenant, One-hundred-and-sixty-second Battalion and Royal Air Force.

Son of Joseph Allison; b. Maxwell; ed. Maxwell P.S. and H.S.; Medicine, 1914-16; C.O.T.C.

In May 1916 he was appointed to the 162nd Battalion as Signalling Officer. He was seconded to the R. Flying Corps in England, and after service in Egypt reached Mesopotamia in the summer of 1917. He was killed in the air at Altun Kupri on the Lesser Zab, while flying over the enemy's lines, after he had volunteered to take the Colonel of the Mapping Section with him in order to obtain important information regarding the Turkish dispositions. After his death it was announced that the Military Cross and Bar had been awarded to him for good service rendered earlier in the campaign in carrying out raids at low altitudes over the enemy's forces.

WILLIAM GEORGE AMSDEN March 23, 1888—Aug. 8, 1918

Lieutenant, Fourth Battalion.

Son of Lionel G. Amsden; b. Detroit; ed. St. Alban's School; Applied Science, 1906-10, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.—Hon.); Librarian, Engineering Society; C.P.R. Engineering Staff; Consolidated Optical Co.; 12th Regt., Lieut.

In June 1916 he was appointed Lieutenant in the 220th Battalion. He joined the 4th Battalion in France on the Lens front in November, 1917. Early in the morning on the first day of the battle of Amiens, near Cayeux, he was in command of a first-wave platoon. When owing to the heavy mist the battalion partially lost its direction, he undertook the difficult and dangerous task of discovering the line of advance by taking a compass bearing and following it over broken ground and under heavy fire through the mist. Not long after he had successfully brought his battalion back to the right direction he was killed by a machine gun bullet. For his service, had he lived, he would have been recommended for a decoration. Buried at Ignaucourt.

ARTHUR STUART ANDERSON May 16, 1889—June 2, 1916

Lance-Corporal, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of the late Rev. John Anderson; b. Peterborough; ed. Peterborough P.S. and C.I.; Scholarship; Applied Science, 1909-13, B.A.Sc. (Mech. Eng.—Hon); Psi Delta Psi; Ingersoll Rand Co., Sherbrooke, P.Q.; City Works Dept., Toronto.

In June 1915 he enlisted in the 2nd Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and reached the front in August. He served on the Somme-Amiens front during the autumn, and through the winter in the Kemmel area till March, when the battalion, now part of the 3rd Canadian Division, moved into the Ypres Salient. He was recommended for a commission in May, but before he could leave the battle of Sanctuary Wood began. During the bombardment he was killed by a shell which destroyed the front line dug-out in which he had volunteered to remain.

CHARLES LAIDLAW ANDERSON Sept. 21, 1896—June 2, 1916

Private, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of Thomas L. Anderson; b. Port Hope; ed. Peterborough P.S. and C.I.; Forestry, 1914-15.

In September 1915 he enlisted in the 33rd Battery, C.F.A., and transferred to the 4th Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., in November, going overseas shortly afterwards. After a brief service with the battalion on the Flanders front, he was killed while on sentry duty on the morning of the battle of Sanctuary Wood.

FREDERICK JOHN ANDERSON March 14, 1886—Oct. 28, 1917

Lieutenant, Eighty-fifth Battalion.

Son of Frank Anderson; b. Niagara Falls, Ont.; ed. Niagara Falls P.S. and C.I.; Applied Science, 1903-07, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); City Engineer, Niagara Falls.

In November 1915 he was appointed to the 98th Battalion, and went overseas in July 1916. A year later he joined the 85th, Nova Scotia Highlanders, Battalion in France, for which unit he served as Works Officer in the Lens area. At Passchendaele his company had just arrived to take over the line in preparation for an attack. They found that the battalion which they were to relieve had been compelled to fall back before the enemy. The company counter-attacked and recaptured the line. He was instantly killed when leading his men just as the objective was won.

WILFRED BISSELL ANDREW June 4, 1896—Feb. 12, 1918

Lieutenant, Thirty-third Battalion and Royal Flying Corps.

Son of Harry A. Andrew; b. Chatham; ed. Chatham P.S. and C.I.; Applied Science, 1913-15; C.O.T.C.

In December 1915 he was appointed Signalling Officer to the 33rd Battalion. From May 1916 to June 1917 he was instructor in signalling to the 39th, 6th and 12th Reserve Battalions in England. He then joined the R. Flying Corps, and received his wings at the end of the year. He went to France in January 1918, being attached as bomber to the 55th Squadron on the Nancy front. A month later he was killed in action, his machine crashing after being over the enemy's lines. Buried at Bazoilles, near Nancy.

FREDERICK CHARLES ANDREWS Oct. 7, 1889—March 16, 1915

Lieutenant, Leinster Regiment.

Son of the late Charles H. Andrews; b. Toronto; ed. Givens Street P.S., Toronto, St. Andrew's College; Applied Science, 1910-14, B.A.Sc. (Min. Eng.—Hon.); Canadian Copper Co., Copper Cliff.

In October 1914 he went overseas and was appointed to the 2nd Leinster Regiment. After only six weeks of training he reached France and on Christmas night first went into the trenches. During the following weeks he served in the severest weather on the Armentières front, at a time when the British forces were largely outnumbered and the battalions could but seldom be relieved. After the battle of Neuve Chapelle the trench lines on either side became broken and confused. He had been cut at night with a party digging a new trench between the lines, and was returning in the dusk of dawn, when he was hit by a shot fired in error by the sentry of another battalion and died an hour later. Buried at Ferme Buterne, near Armentières. His Commanding Officer wrote that, had he lived, he would have been recommended for the Military Cross for his courage in lying out all night between the lines with several wounded men.

GORDON STEWART ANDREWS March 22, 1888—Nov. 18, 1915

Lieutenant, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of Walter S. Andrews; b. Toronto; ed. privately; Trinity College, 1906-10, B.A. (Classics); Edward Blake Schol.; Editor, 'Trinity Review'; Staff, Toronto 'Mail and Empire'.

In the autumn of 1915 he obtained a commission in the 33rd Battery, C.F.A. Shortly afterwards he was accidentally killed while in training at Kingston.

WILBUR FAWCETT ANNIS Feb. 14, 1895—May 4, 1918

Lieutenant, Fifty-eighth Battalion and Royal Flying Corps.

Son of Levi Edward Annis; b. Scarborough; ed. Scarborough P.S., Riverdale C.I., Toronto; Victoria College, 1915-16; 20th Regt., Lieut.

At the end of his first term he was appointed to the 76th Battalion and went overseas in September 1916. The next month he joined the 58th Battalion in France. Being wounded near Vimy in December he was invalided to England, and on his recovery was seconded to the R. Flying Corps. He returned to Canada at the end of 1917 and was appointed to the Instructional staff as Flight-Commander. He was fatally injured in an accident while in the performance of his duties, and died in the hospital in Camp Borden.

ANDREW WILLIAM ARCHIBALD Feb. 4, 1892—April 4, 1917

Private, Fourteenth Machine Gun Company.

Son of Andrew Archibald; b. Hibbert Tp., Perth Cy.; ed. Tuckersmith P.S., Seaforth C.I.; Hon. Faculty Entrance, 1909; Teaching in Hullett and McKillop Tps., Huron Cy.; Education, 1911-12; Teaching at Zurich and Dufferin P.S., Toronto.

In April 1915 he enlisted in the 35th Battalion, Machine Gun Section. The following January he joined the 18th Battalion in France, and in that unit served in the Ypres area and at St. Eloi and the Somme. In the latter battle he was wounded on October 19th. Early in 1918 he transferred to the 14th Machine Gun Company. He was killed by shrapnel a few days before the battle of Vimy Ridge. Buried at Ecoivres, Mont St. Eloi.

WILLIAM LIND ARGO April 19, 1890—Oct. 17, 1918

Captain, United States Chemical Warfare Service.

Son of the Rev. James Argo; b. Norval; ed. Wingham H.S.; University College

1907-11, B.A. (Chem. and Min.); A. T. Fulton Schol., 1908, Edward Blake Schol., 1909, Daniel Wilson Schol., 1910; Treasurer, U.C., Y.M.C.A.; M.A., 1912; Staff, Chemistry; Ph.D. and Instructor, University of California; md. Hilda Wallace Casselman.

At first he worked under the United States War Office in Washington on problems of poison gas, and obtained important results on the eye-piece of the gas-mask. For this service he was appointed Chief of the Catalytic Section. In August 1918, on the special request of General Pershing, he received his commission in the American Army, which had been deferred owing to his Canadian citizenship, and shortly afterwards went to France. After a few weeks' service at Paris, Tours, and Chaumont (Haute-Marne), he succumbed to pneumonia. Buried at Chaumont.

ROBERT STANLEY ARMOUR July 8, 1889—Dec. 1, 1918

Major, Royal Army Medical Corps.

Son of the late Robert S. Armour; b. Campbellford; ed. Percy P.S., Campbellford H.S.; Medicine, 1910-15, M.B., C.O.T.C.

He was first appointed as Lieutenant to No. 4 General Hospital, but in July 1915 transferred to the R.A.M.C., in which he was promoted Captain in March 1916. For a year he served on a hospital ship to the Dardanelles and in the Mediterranean. After working also at Salonica and Alexandria he joined the East African Expeditionary Force, and served as Officer Commanding the First Field Ambulance in German and Portuguese East Africa at Mingayo and Dahaga. In March 1918 he was Mentioned in Despatches. At the close of the war he died from influenza at No. 84 General Hospital. Buried at Dar-es-Salaam.

PAUL LYNDON ARMSTRONG Sept. 17, 1890—Oct. 29, 1916

Lieutenant, Seventy-third Battalion.

Son of the late John R. Armstrong; b. Ottawa; ed. Ottawa C.I.; University College, 1908-12, B.A. (Pol. Sc.); Kappa Alpha; XIII Club; President, Historical Club; First Hockey colours, Tennis team; Law School; LL.B., 1915; 5th Regt., Lieut.

In July 1915 he was appointed to the 73rd Battalion, and went overseas in March 1916. He reached France in August, and served before Ypres and Vierstraat before going to the Somme front. At the time of his death he was Second in command of his company. He was killed by a shell near Courceleste, and buried at Albert Military Cemetery.

THOMAS ANDREW ARTHURS May 1, 1882—Dec. 6, 1918

Captain, Chinese Labour Corps.

Son of Thomas Arthurs; b. Limehouse; ed. Georgetown H.S.; University College, 1905-08, B.A. (Philos.); Year executive; Vice-President U.C. Y.M.C.A.; Knox College; Presbyterian Ministry, Missionary in Honan, China; md. Hilda Gertrude Scott.

In March 1917 he left China with a Chinese Labour Battalion. In France he served at Zenneghem and Le Havre with No. 30 Company, and also acted as Interpreter. Shortly after the Armistice he was taken ill with pneumonia and died in Hospital at Le Havre, where he was buried in Ste. Marie Cemetery.

ALEXANDER WATSON BAIRD March 2, 1892—Aug. 8, 1918

Captain, One-hundred-and-sixteenth Battalion.

Son of the late James Baird, K.C.; b. Toronto; ed. Church Street P.S., Toronto, Upper Canada College; University College, 1910-11; Beta Theta Pi; Kent, McClain Co.; 40th Regt., Lieut.

He was first appointed to the 80th Battalion and later transferred to the 126th. After reaching England in August 1916, he joined the 116th Battalion and went with it to France in February 1917. In that year he served through the battles of Vimy, Hill 70, and Passchendaele. In the latter engagement he won the Military Cross for his bravery and skill in leading a successful raid on the enemy's trenches prior to the battalion's attack. On April 1-2, 1918, he won a Bar to the Cross for his service in a trench raid at Mericourt on the Lens front. On the first day of the battle of Amiens the battalion in advancing on Hamon Wood suffered severe casualties from machine gun fire. Leading his company he at once attacked a machine gun nest. Though he was hit several times he captured the position, but was shot by a concealed officer as the enemy were surrendering. His prompt action saved many lives and enabled the battalion to advance. Buried at Hourges.

FREDERIC ALLEN BALLACHEY Feb. 20, 1877—Sept. 26, 1918

Lieutenant, United States Army Dental Corps.

Son of Samuel Ballachey; b. Paisley; ed. Paisley P.S., Brantford C.I.; R. College Dental Surgeons, 1895-99, D.D.S.; Practising at Buffalo; md. A. Leone Park.

In March 1918 he was appointed to the United States Army Dental Corps, and served at Buffalo, and Camp Dix, N.J., where he succumbed to influenza in the following autumn.

In June 1915 he was appointed to the 58th Battalion as Second in command, and reached France early in 1916. The battalion was first stationed in the Ypres Salient, and here he served through the fierce fighting that followed the attack on Sanctuary Wood. Early in the morning of the day after the successful counter-attack he was going up to the front line, when he was struck by a shell fragment and instantly killed. Buried near Poperinghe.

FRED EVEREST BANBURY Oct. 27, 1893—April 1, 1918

Flight Lieutenant, Royal Naval Air Service.

Only son of Robert S. Banbury; b. Wolseley, Sask.; ed. Wolseley P.S. and H.S., Regina C.I.; Victoria College, 1911-12, University College, 1912-14; Regina Normal School; Teaching at Bredenbury, Sask.; Law Student, Regina.

In March 1916 he began training with the Curtiss Co., Newport News, Va. After obtaining his Pilot's certificate with the highest record of the School he went to England in July, 1916, and received his commission in the R. Naval Air Service. He underwent further training there and reached France in March 1917, where he served in the 9th Squadron on the Dunkerque-Zeebrugge front. He was appointed Flight-Commander in July. In December he came home on leave, returning to duty in March 1918 with his Squadron (209th R.A.F.). A few days later he died from heart failure while flying. Buried at Hazebrouck. After his death it was announced that the Distinguished Flying Cross had been awarded to him for his continuous skill and ability as a Pilot in 1917, during which period he destroyed eleven enemy machines.

LLOYD ASHLEY BANBURY June 22, 1894—April 17, 1917

Gunner, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of E. A. Banbury; b. Wolseley, Sask.; ed. Wolseley P.S. and H.S.; University College, 1912-14; Law student, Regina.

He had been forced to give up his work at the University owing to the loss of the sight of one eye. After studying Law for a time with a Regina firm he enlisted in the spring of 1916 in the 77th Battery, C.F.A., and went overseas in August. In November he joined the 21st Battery, and served on the Somme and Vimy fronts. A few days after the capture of Vimy Ridge he was killed in action by a shell while serving his gun. Buried at Acheville Road Cemetery, Vimy.

PERCY LOUIS BARBER April 13, 1893—Nov. 3, 1917

Lieutenant, Twenty-first Battalion.

Son of the Rev. F. Louis Barber; b. Southport, Eng.; ed. Hill Croft School, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay C.I., Picton C.I.; Teaching at Hill Croft and Toronto and Prince Edward County Schools; Education, 1914-15; Cadet Corps, Major; C.O.T.C., Col-Sergt.

In June 1915 he joined the 2nd Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., from which he was transferred to the 38th, and later to the 59th Battalion, with which he went overseas. He joined the 21st Battalion in France, and while serving in it was wounded at Courcellette and again at Vimy Ridge. While leading his men at Passchendaele against a severe counter-attack, he was wounded in the chest by a sniper's bullet and only lived a short time afterwards. Buried at Passchendaele.

JOSEPH CLAUDE ANTHONY BARKER March 3, 1895—May 19, 1918

Second Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of J. J. Barker; b. Toronto; ed. Nipigon P.S.; St. Michael's College, 1912-13; R. College Dental Surgeons, 1913-17, D.D.S.; C.O.T.C.

Through the summer of 1916 he served as Sergeant in the C.A.D.C. at Camp Hughes, and then returned to College to complete his course. He again served in the C.A.D.C. in Winnipeg and Camp St. Charles in the summer of 1917. In October he joined the R. Flying Corps at Toronto and trained through the winter in Texas, obtaining his commission in March 1918. After reaching England he was completing his course, when he was accidentally killed in a flight near Bournemouth, the day before he was due to go to France. Buried at Durrington, near Amesbury.

JOSEPH ALBURN BASSETT Aug. 26, 1888—Oct. 20, 1916

Corporal, Royal Canadian Regiment.

Son of Elias Bassett; b. Listowel; ed. Listowel P.S. and H.S.; Victoria College, 1913-14; Probationer, London Methodist Conference.

In 1915 he enlisted at Halifax in the R. Canadian Regiment and went overseas in August. Reaching France early in 1916 he served through the fighting of the following spring and summer, mostly in the Ypres area. In the battle of the Somme he was missing. Later it was reported that, being wounded in the head, he had been taken prisoner and had died at Graincourt.

ALFRED CARBERT BASTEDO April 30, 1886—April 23, 1915

He was instantly killed by a shell where his platoon was holding a dangerous section of the front line trenches at the Somme. Buried near the place where he fell.

ARCHIBALD MACKENZIE FERGUSSON March 25, 1890—Aug. 24, 1918

Private, Thirty-first Battalion.

Son of Dr. John Fergusson; b. Essex; ed. Ridgetown C.I.; University College 1907-11; Royal Bank.

He enlisted in November 1917 and went overseas the following March. In July 1918 he joined the 31st Battalion in France, and served on the Arras-Neuville-Vitasse front. He was instantly killed by a sniper on August 24th while on daylight patrol. Buried at Wailly Orchard Cemetery near Arras.

VICTOR ARCHIBALD FERRIER Aug. 29, 1893—June 2, 1916

Private, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of Chester Ferrier; b. Toronto; ed. Mimico P.S., Parkdale C.I.; University College 1911-14.

In October 1915 he enlisted in the 4th Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and went overseas in November. He joined the battalion in Flanders in the spring of 1916. After the battle of Sanctuary Wood he was reported as wounded and missing. Later a prisoner in Germany, who belonged to the same company, stated that he had seen him killed on that day.

GEORGE RIVERS SANDERSON FLEMING April 15, 1886—April 17, 1917

Flight Lieutenant, Royal Naval Air Service.

Son of Atwell Fleming; b. London, Ont.; ed. Harbord Street C.I., Toronto; Victoria College 1903-04; Applied Science 1904-07, Diploma (Civ. Eng.); Atwell Fleming Co.

In August 1915 he was appointed to the R. Naval Air Service, and reached France in the summer of 1916. He was for a time employed in taking planes from England to a point near Paris; and then moved to Luxeuil, south of Nancy, with No. 3 Wing. From this point he was sent out on bombing expeditions against German munitions plants. On April 14, 1917, when returning from a raid on Freiburg, he was shot down, the tail of his machine being blown away. He received fatal injuries, his breast bone and leg being broken. After regaining consciousness he was quite bright for some hours, but three days later succumbed to his injuries. Buried at Leberau, Alsace.

JAMES STEPHENSON FLEMING April 15, 1892—April 11, 1916

Sergeant, Second Canadian Pioneer Battalion.

Son of Thomas Fleming; b. Trenton; ed. Brockville P.S. and C.I.; Applied Science 1909-14, B.A.Sc. 1916 (Min. Eng.); Mining Engineer at Timmins, Ont.

In October 1915 he enlisted in the 2nd Pioneer Battalion, and went overseas in December. While in England he completed a six months' course in signalling in six weeks. He reached France in March 1916 and served in the Ypres area. A few nights before his death, at the battle of St. Eloi, he rendered valuable service in helping to extricate a large number of men from a dangerous position, under heavy artillery fire. On the night of April 10-11 he was directing a party of men in repairing damages to the parapet after a bombardment, when he received a rifle bullet in the head which caused almost instant death. Buried at Ridgewood Cemetery, near Voormezele. Shortly before his death he had been recommended for a commission.

PETER McLAREN FORIN Jan. 28, 1869—April 19, 1915

Captain, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of the late John Forin; b. Belleville; ed. Belleville P.S. and H.S.; University College 1887-91, B.A.; Queen's University School of Mines; Barrister, Lincoln's Inn, and practising in British Columbia; 102nd Regt., Capt.

In the autumn of 1914 he was appointed to the 34th Battery, C.F.A. The following spring he died of pneumonia contracted when in training at the Royal School of Artillery in Kingston. Buried at Belleville.

GORDON OLIVER FORSYTH Nov. 10, 1890—Oct. 10, 1918

Lieutenant, Imperial Machine Gun Corps.

Son of John Forsyth; b. Toronto; ed. Mount Shaver P.S., Orangeville H.S.; University College 1909-14, B.A.; Education 1914-15; Teaching at Dufferin Street School, Toronto; C.O.T.C.

In March 1916 he was appointed to the 182nd Battalion. On the reduction of its establishment, he enlisted in the University Training Company, from which he went overseas in June 1917. He was appointed to the Imperial Machine Gun Corps and joined the 37th Battalion. Reaching France in November, he served on the Cambrai front in the Third Army. In the advance near Le Cateau on October 10th, 1918, he was going forward to discover the enemy's position, when he saw signs of a detached party left behind by the Germans to convey news of the advance. After bringing up more men he was about to rush the position, when two machine guns opened fire, killing him instantly. Buried at Viesly near Caudry.

ROY ANDERSON FORSYTH Feb. 19, 1895—Nov. 28, 1917

Second Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of John A. Forsyth; b. Teeswater; ed. St. Thomas and London P.S.s., London C.I., Jarvis Street C.I., and Oakwood C.I., Toronto; Trinity College 1912-13, University College 1913-14.

In November 1914 he enlisted in the 19th Battalion, and was later promoted to Sergeant, Headquarters, 4th Infantry Brigade. He reached France in September 1915 and served in the Ploegsteert-Ypres area, and through the battles of St. Eloi, Zillebeke, and the Somme. He obtained his commission in March 1917 in the R. Field Artillery, and in May transferred to the R. Flying Corps as an Observer in the 7th Squadron. On the morning of November 28th his plane went over the line with one other. They encountered five German planes and after a severe fight drove them off. He and his Pilot were last seen by their companions going apparently without difficulty, but were lost sight of in the fog. Some days later a German message was dropped stating that the machine had landed within their lines and the Pilot had been killed, but no details were learned of the Observer's fate.

FRANKLIN JAMES FOSTER July 23, 1890—Aug. 23, 1917

Second Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of Adam Foster; b. Clinton; ed. Clinton P.S., Goderich C.I.; University College 1910-14, B.A. (Pol. Sci.); U.C. Literary Society executive; 'Varsity' staff; Regina Law School.

In June 1916 he enlisted in the University Overseas Training Company, and in September joined the R. Flying Corps, passing first in the qualifying examination. He went to France in April 1917 and joined the 11th Squadron, 13th Wing, on the Lens-Cambrai front. On the day of his death he was out on patrol near Warlincourt, when a storm broke and a number of the machines made for the aerodrome. He had almost landed when another plane crossed his course. He might have landed safely himself, but in doing so would have endangered those in the other machine. To avoid a collision he turned upwards again, but his engine stalled and the machine crashed, instantly killing him and his Observer. Buried at Saulty.

FINLAY DAVID FRASER Dec. 2, 1886—Aug. 12, 1916

Captain, Fourth Battalion.

Son of the late Robert I. Fraser; b. Brantford; ed. Barrie P.S., Brantford P.S. and C.I.; Ontario College of Pharmacy, PHM.B. 1910; Druggist, firm of S. Tapscott & Co., Brantford; 38th Regt., Capt.

In January 1915 he was appointed to the 36th Battalion, and went overseas in June. A year later he joined the 4th Battalion in France. After only two days in the trenches he was taken ill with appendicitis. Though operated on at No. 10 Casualty Clearing Station he continued seriously ill and died a month afterwards at No. 14 General Hospital in Boulogne. Buried at Wimereux.

GEORGE MATTHEW FRETWELL Oct. 28, 1893—Sept. 27, 1918

Corporal, Canadian Machine Gun Corps.

Son of William Fretwell; b. Waterdown; ed. Waterdown P.S. and H.S.; Medicine 1911-14; Canadian Express Co.

He enlisted in January 1918, and went overseas in March. After training at the Machine Gun Depot, Seaford, he went to France in August 1915, joining the 2nd Motor Machine Gun Brigade. After serving at the Canal du Nord he fell near Cambrai, being instantly killed by a shell as he was carrying ammunition to one of the guns of the battery. Buried at Sailly. For his good work he had been promoted Corporal on the morning of his death.

HARRY WILLIAM FROGLEY Nov. 2, 1887—April 30, 1916

Lance-Corporal, Canadian Engineers.

Son of Charles J. Frogley; b. Toronto; ed. St. Clement's School, N. Toronto; Applied Science 1908-10; Mainer Electrical Co., Winnipeg.

In October 1914 he enlisted in the Engineers of the Second Division, and went overseas in May 1915. He went to France in July and served in the Ypres area. He was killed four miles south of Ypres when a shell exploded in his dug-out, none of the party surviving. Buried at Dicketusch.

ALMIN MINOR FROMM May 24, 1893—Sept. 23, 1918

Cadet, Royal Air Force.

Son of Ambrose C. Froom; b. Ormonde; ed. Ottawa P.S. and C.I., Regina P.S. and C.I.; University College 1911-14; McMaster University, B.A.; Vice-President, Western Club.

In January 1918 he joined the R. Flying Corps as Cadet, and trained at Leaside and Beamsville. At the latter place he was killed in an accident while making a solo flight. Buried at Regina.

GEORGE GORDON GALLOWAY June 9, 1894—Feb. 10, 1916

Corporal, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of W. Oswald Galloway; b. Toronto; ed. Borden Street P.S., Harbour Street C.I. Toronto; Prince of Wales Scholar; University College 1911-15, B.A. (Math. & Phys.); William Mulock Scholar; A.A.A.S. Scholar; Year President; U.C. Literary Society executive.

After undergoing an operation in order to be accepted for service he enlisted in March 1915, with a number of others from the University, in the 26th Battery, C.F.A., and before going overseas had qualified for Sergeant. The battery went to England in August, and reached France in January 1916. On February 7th just after the battery had moved into action, he went up to the front line in charge of the telephonists. The next afternoon he was hit by a sniper when passing an exposed corner of the trench. He was removed to No. 8 Casualty Clearing Station at Bailleul, where he died early in the morning of the second day. Buried at Bailleul.

GERALD GALT Oct. 12, 1887—Dec. 25, 1916

Lieutenant, Canadian Engineers.

In the summer of 1916 he returned to Canada from Chile and joined the 3rd Tunneling Company, Canadian Engineers, at Ottawa. He reached France in September. After a brief service at the front, he was killed instantly by a shell on Christmas Day, when engaged in tunnelling operations near Messines. Buried at Hyde Park Corner Cemetery, Ploegsteert.

FRANCIS EGMONT GANE Feb. 4, 1885—May 13, 1916

Captain, Forty-third Battalion.

Son of the late Francis J. Gane; b. Normanby, New Zealand; ed. Normanby, N.Z.; Mining 1903-05; Dawson, Y.T., H.S. 1905-07; University College 1907-10, 1911-12, B.A. (Classics); Treasurer, U.C. Literary Society; M.A. 1914; Staff, Manitoba College.

In May 1915 he was appointed to the 43rd, Cameron Highlanders, Battalion, and went overseas in June. The battalion reached France in January 1916 and his service was mostly in the Ypres Salient. He was killed by a sniper on the evening of May 13th while he was in charge of a working party behind the front line. Buried at 'Railway Dug-outs', near Zillebeke.

RUSSELL THOMAS GARDNER Sept. 25, 1895—Sept. 20, 1917

Pombardier, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of John F. Gardner; b. Guelph; ed. Jesse Ketchum, Fern Avenue P.S., Parkdale C.I., Toronto; Applied Science 1915-16; College Jr. Rugby team; C.O.T.C.

In 1916 he enlisted in the 53rd Battery, C.F.A., and went overseas in September. He was promoted Corporal in England, and was for a time attached to the Ammunition Column, but reverted and rejoined the 53rd Battery in order to reach the front. He went to France in August of 1917, and served on the Lens front. A month later he fell—the first of the battery. The battery was being shelled at intervals, and the men were working to build up cover for the gun position, when a shell splinter pierced his heart killing him instantly and painlessly. Buried at Aix-Neulette.

JOHN URE GARROW April 14, 1888—Sept. 12, 1916

Lieutenant, Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Son of the late Hon. Mr. Justice Garrow; b. Goderich; ed. Goderich C.I., Toronto Church School, Upper Canada College; University College 1906-07, 1908-12, B.A. (Pol. Sc.); XIII Club; Alpha Delta Phi; Law School; Called to the Bar 1915; C.O.T.C.

In August 1915 he was appointed to the 74th battalion, and went overseas the following April. He crossed to France in June 1916 with a reinforcing draft to the 4th Mounted Rifles after the battle of Sanctuary Wood. He served first in the Ypres area and then went to the Somme with his battalion. At Courcellette he was fatally gassed while placing his platoon in a section of the line. Buried at Puchevillers.

JAMES ALEXANDER GARVIE May 13, 1896—Aug. 21, 1918

Lieutenant, King's Own Scottish Borderers.

Son of William Alexander Garvie; b. Leith, Scotland; ed. Bonnington Academy, Leith; King Edward P.S., Oakwood C.I., Harbord Street C.I., Toronto; Applied Science 1914-16; C.O.T.C.

In the spring of 1916 he went overseas in a draft from the C.O.T.C., and obtained his commission in the King's Own Scottish Borderers, 2nd Battalion. He reached France in December and served through the Vimy campaign and the battle of Passchendaele. He was awarded the Military Cross for his service in this battle, when at Polderhoek on October 4-5, after all the other officers and most of the N.C.O.'s had become casualties, he took command of the company, and led his men with conspicuous bravery under heavy and continuous fire. At the end of the year he went with his battalion to the Italian front. Here he served on the Piave section till April, 1918, when he returned to France. On the night of August 20th the battalion had gone into the trenches two miles in front of Gommecourt. The next day some of his men were buried from the explosion of an enemy's shell in the trench, and when helping to dig them out he was instantly killed by a second shell. Buried at Gommecourt Château Cemetery.

GORDON SMITH MELLIS GAULD May 22, 1893—March 25, 1918

Lieutenant, Royal Field Artillery and Royal Flying Corps.

In February 1915 he enlisted in the Eaton Machine Gun Battery. He obtained a commission in the R. Field Artillery in England, and reaching France in April 1916 served with the 149th Brigade, mostly on the Somme front. He was awarded the Military Cross for his service on July 5th-6th, when as Forward Observation Officer at the Briquetterie, he kept up, under heavy fire, visual communication with Headquarters after the wires had been broken. He had already been recommended for his courage in putting out a fire in a gun pit after a premature explosion by which he himself had been wounded. In the spring of 1917 he was seconded to the R. Flying Corps, and spent four months with the 8th Squadron in France as Artillery Observer. He then went to England to train as a Pilot, and on finishing his course was employed as Instructor. When he was flying with a pupil at Harlaxton, the machine crashed, from an unknown cause, killing both instantly. Buried at Grantham.

JOHN D. GEAR Nov. 29, 1897—Nov. 10, 1918

Surgeon Sub-Lieutenant, Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve.

Son of Dr. Henry Gear; b. Erin; ed. Erin p.s. and Continuation School; Medicine 1915-18; C.O.T.C.

In January 1916 he tried to enlist with the Signallers but was rejected. He was accepted as Surgeon Probationer in the R.N.V.R. in April 1918 and after training at the R. Naval Hospital, Haslar, was appointed to H.M.S. 'Melampus', Destroyer, on the North Sea patrol. After some months service he died following a brief illness from influenza at No. 3 London General Hospital, Wandsworth. Buried at Brookwood, Surrey.

In 1914 he joined the R. Army Medical Corps, and served in the German West Africa campaign. When an outbreak of bubonic plague occurred he volunteered his assistance, and took charge till he contracted the disease himself and died at Winburg. Buried at Winburg, O.F.S.

ERNEST RICHARD GILMER May 1, 1889—Oct. 12, 1916

Second Lieutenant, Royal Irish Fusiliers.

Son of William H. Gilmer; b. Newry; ed. Elma P.S., Listowel H.S., Regina C.I.; University of Saskatchewan; Medicine 1913-15; C.O.T.C.

In April 1915 he enlisted in No. 5 Field Ambulance, C.A.M.C., of the Second Contingent, and reached France in September. He served with this unit in the Ypres area till the spring of 1916, when he was wounded in the hand. He received his commission in the 1st Battalion of the R. Irish Fusiliers in July. On October 12th at Les Boeuks on the Somme front he was sent forward with 70 men to attack a position that was believed to be weakly held, but proved to be strongly defended by machine guns. He fell near the German parapet, and of the party none returned.

STANLEY HILL GLENDINNING Sept. 10, 1893—July 18, 1918

Lieutenant, Royal Air Force.

Son of the late H. Glendinning; b. Sunderland; ed. Sunderland P.S., Uxbridge H.S., Lindsay C.I.; University College 1913-15; C.O.T.C.

Early in 1915 he enlisted in the Eaton Machine Gun Battery, and went overseas in June. He went to France in February 1916 and was employed for some months as scout, despatch-rider and signaller, mostly in the Ypres Salient. He then returned to England to train for the R. Flying Corps, and went back to France in October as an Observer in the 6th Squadron. In 1917 he qualified as Pilot and in October was sent to Fort Worth, Texas, as Instructor in gunnery. He was transferred to Beamsville, Ont., in April 1918, where some weeks later he resumed flying to qualify as Flight-Commander. On July 18th when he was flying, his machine took fire and crashed, injuring him so severely that he died within a few hours. Buried at Sunderland.

GEORGE CLARENCE GLIDDON 1888—May 11, 1915

Captain, Canadian Army Medical Corps and Tenth Battalion.

Son of John Gliddon; b. Rodney; ed. Rodney P.S., St. Thomas C.I.; Medicine 1909-14, M.B.

He was beginning post-graduate work for his M.D., when the war broke out. He at once joined the First Contingent as Medical Officer to the 10th Battalion, and went overseas in October. Going to France in February 1915 he served through the second battle of Ypres. He was wounded on May 5th and succumbed to his injuries a few days later.

THOMAS LEON GOLDIE Nov. 6, 1882—Aug. 28, 1916

Gunner, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of the late Thomas Goldie; b. Guelph; ed. Guelph p.s. and c.i.; University College 1900-04, B.A. (Nat. Science); Geological Surveyor in Ontario and Alberta.

When the war began he was working at Regina, and shortly afterwards he returned to Ontario to enlist. Early in 1915 he joined the 16th Battery, 4th Brigade, C.F.A., and went overseas in May. He reached France with the Second Contingent in September and served on the Ploegsteert-Kemmel-St. Eloi front. His previous experience as a surveyor made him a valuable observer for the battery. Though needing a rest and relief for some time, owing to the shortage of men he held on too long till he was finally invalidated with jaundice, just at the time when his battery was moving into the Somme front. He died in hospital at Manchester, where he was buried. He had been recommended for the Military Medal and for a commission shortly before his death.

STEWART MARCON GOODEVE Oct. 5, 1896—Nov. 20, 1917

Lieutenant, Canadian Field Artillery and Royal Flying Corps.

In March 1915 he enlisted in the Machine Gun Section of the 19th Battalion, and reached France in September. Through the winter he served in the Wulverghem—St. Eloi area, and distinguished himself in several reconnaissances. When on duty with his section in the trenches at Ridgewood he was instantly killed by a bomb. Buried at Ridgewood Cemetery. He had been mentioned for a commission, and been recommended for the D.C.M. for his service in a trench raid.

DOUGLAS FRASER MACKENZIE June 16, 1894—Aug. 4, 1918

Second Lieutenant, Royal Air Force.

Son of the Rev. Murdoch MacKenzie, D.D.; b. Chefoo, China; ed. Georgetown H.S., Harbord Street C.I., Toronto; First Mary Mulock scholar; University College 1913-14; U.C. Literary Society executive; Knox College.

In October 1914 he enlisted in the 19th Battalion, but was subsequently discharged as physically unfit. Shortly afterwards, however, he was again accepted for service with the 35th Battalion. When a draft of signallers was called for in May 1915 he volunteered and went overseas with the Second Divisional Signal Company. He reached France in September and for 25 months served in the Second Division through the fighting around Ypres, at the Somme and from Vimy to Hill 70. In October 1917 he joined the Royal Flying Corps as Cadet, and received his commission in February 1918. For some time he was employed in flying machines from one camp to another in England, which delayed the completion of his training as a fighting scout. He was accidentally killed when flying near the home of his uncle, Col. Grant Morden, Hetherden Hall, Bucks. Buried at Iver Heath.

GEORGE LAWRENCE BISSET MACKENZIE Jan. 4, 1892—June 7, 1916

Lieutenant, Third Battalion.

Only son of George A. Mackenzie; b. Toronto; ed. privately and at Upper Canada College; University College 1909-13, B.A.; All Souls Prize; Phi Kappa Pi; Law School; 12th Regt., Lieut.

On the outbreak of the war he volunteered for service in the ranks, but owing to his eyesight was refused. He then obtained a commission in the 12th York Rangers, from which he was appointed to the 35th Battalion early in 1915. In June, with his close friend Errol Platt, he was sent overseas with a draft, and in October they both joined the 3rd Battalion in France. He served through the following winter and spring in the area south of Ypres and in the Salient. It was during the interval between the losses at Sanctuary Wood and the recapture of the line that he was sent with one non-commissioned officer to reconnoitre the trenches that were temporarily held by the enemy. Though his companion was wounded he brought him safely back, after having obtained valuable information. He had made his report and was returning to his company when he was instantly killed by a sniper. Buried at Lyssenthoek, near to Errol Platt, who had fallen a few days before.

WALTER WAKE MCKENZIE April 28, 1891—Feb. 19, 1917

MALCOLM SMITH MERCER Sept. 17, 1859—June 3, 1916

Major-General, Commanding Third Division.

Son of the late Thomas Mercer; b. Etobicoke Tp., York Cy.; ed. Delmer p.s., St. Catharines c.i.; University College 1881-85, B.A. (Philos.); Recording Secretary, v.c. Literary Society; Law School 1885-88; Barrister, practising in Toronto, firm of Mercer & Bradford; 2nd Regt., Sec. Lieut. 1885, Lieut. 1887, Captain 1891, Adjutant 1892-97, Bt.-Major 1902, Major 1906; Lt.-Col., o.c. 1st Bn. 1911; Commandant 1912.

As an undergraduate he received his commission in the Queen's Own Rifles. Devoting special attention to rifle shooting, he was a number of times on the Bisley team, and was its Adjutant in 1911. In 1913 he visited the ground where later the troops under him were destined to fight. He had also taken special Staff courses. On the outbreak of the war he left Toronto as Commanding Officer of the 3rd Battalion, and at Valcartier was appointed to command the 1st Infantry Brigade. In this command he served through the battle of Ypres and the following campaign of 1915. In January 1916 he was promoted Major-General and appointed to command the newly formed Third Division, which when completed took over the Hooge—Zillebeke sector in March. Early on the morning of June 2nd he was making a tour of inspection of the front trenches, and had just left the position occupied by the 4th Mounted Rifles, when the enemy's bombardment began. Being severely shocked by a shell, he made his way to a dug-out some yards back with Lieut. L. Gooderham, his A.D.C., where they remained for four hours till the bombardment slackened. They then began to go back over the open, but after having gone a short distance he was wounded in the leg. Lieut. Gooderham dragged him into a ditch and bandaged his wound. Meanwhile the advancing Germans had passed them. In the evening the British guns opened a barrage to check the enemy's reserves. During the night engagement of June 2-3 he was instantly killed by a piece of shrapnel about one o'clock a.m., and the next day Lieut. Gooderham was taken prisoner. General Mercer's body was found on June 13th, when the ground was recaptured, and buried at Poperinghe. Just before his death he was awarded the c.b., and he was Mentioned in General Haig's Despatches of April 30th and November 13th, 1916.

JOHN REDMOND WALSHINGHAM MEREDITH May 22, 1878—Nov. 25, 1916

He was appointed from the C.O.T.C. to the 3rd Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., in June 1915, but being ill with typhoid fever when it went overseas, left in November in command of the 4th Company. He joined the battalion in France in June 1916 after the battle of Zillebeke. In the attack at Courcelette on September 15th the two platoons under his command became joined to the 42nd Battalion and went through with it. Early next day he got into touch with his own Commanding Officer and received orders to bomb down the trench to his right. This he did successfully, thereby assisting the Patricias to gain their second objective. In carrying out this task he was wounded and removed to hospital at Le Touquet. At first he seemed to be doing well, but on the 27th his heart failed and a few hours later he succumbed. Buried at Etapes.

HERBERT STANLEY MONKMAN Oct. 3, 1876—Dec. 1, 1915

Captain, Third Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Son of John Monkman; b. Brussels; ed. Margaret Walker.

He was appointed to the 3rd Mounted Rifles early in 1915, and went overseas in June. At the end of September he reached France. A few weeks later he was killed in action at La Petite Douve, near Ploegsteert. Buried at Ploegsteert Military Cemetery.

CHARLES WESLEY DEEPROSE MOONEY Aug. 31, 1898—Oct. 8, 1918

Gunner, Canadian Heavy Artillery, att. Canadian Corps Signal Company.

Son of the late Samuel W. Mooney; b. Inverness, P.Q.; ed. Inverness Academy and Stanstead College; Victoria College 1915-16; College Rugby team; C.O.T.C.

In March 1916 he enlisted in the 67th, University of Toronto, Battery, C.F.A., on its organisation. After going overseas he transferred to the 1st Canadian Heavy Battery and reached France in May 1917. He served as a Signaller in wireless through the campaign before Lens and at Hill 70 and Passchendaele, and again on the Lens front through the following winter and spring. After going through the battles of Amiens and Arras, he was wounded near Cambrai on October 3rd. He was removing wireless equipment from a post that was being threatened by heavy shell fire to a safer position, when he was struck in the neck and leg by shrapnel. Though his friends gave immediate aid and he was quickly taken back for treatment, he died from his injuries five days later in hospital at Camiers. Buried at Etapes.

JAMES GORDON MOORE Sept. 1, 1895—Aug. 13, 1919

Second Lieutenant, Royal Air Force.

Son of W. J. Moore; b. Toronto; ed. Annette Street P.S., Parkdale C.I., Toronto; University College 1914-17; C.O.T.C.

He enlisted in the University Overseas Training Company in December 1916, and qualified for a Lieutenant's commission in the Infantry. In 1917 he transferred to the R. Flying Corps. He went in March 1918 to France, where he served with the 56th Squadron in bombing raids over German territory. He was fatally injured on October 18th near Boulogne. As he was flying the machine crashed and burst into flames. He was found trying to rescue his Pilot from the burning wreckage, although his own clothing was on fire. This action cost him his life, as he was severely burned and after several months of suffering he died at Kensington Hospital. Buried at Hampstead.

EDWARD CLARENCE MORGAN Dec. 16, 1894—June 2, 1916.

Lance-Corporal, Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Son of John W. Morgan; b. Cookstown; ed. Weston H.S.; Education 1914-15; C.O.T.C.

He enlisted in May 1915 in the 4th Mounted Rifles, and reached France in October. He served with the battalion machine gun section through the following months on the Ploegsteert-St. Eloi front and in the Salient. When the battle of Sanctuary Wood began his machine gun was blown to pieces and all of the crew were buried. It appears from the report of one of his companions, who was eventually dug out by the Germans, that he was either instantly killed or died shortly afterwards. He had been badly wounded at the beginning of the fight but, being in charge of the gun, refused to leave his post.

BASIL MENZIES MORRIS May 19, 1895—March 17, 1917

Lieutenant, Canadian Engineers and Royal Flying Corps.

He enlisted in the Heavy Artillery at Ottawa in May 1917, and at the end of September joined the 23rd Howitzer Battery, C.F.A., in France. He was invalided from Passchendaele in November, and returning home in March 1918 went to hospital, where he died some months later.

EDWARD BASIL GOWAN MORTON April 10, 1898—July 16, 1918

Captain, Royal Air Force.

Son of F. G. Morton; b. Barrie; ed. Private School, Barrie P.S. and C.I.; Applied Science 1916-17; C.O.T.C.

In April 1917 he applied to join the R. Naval Air Service and was accepted. As no more were needed at the time for this service, he transferred to the R. Flying Corps. After training in England he went to France in November 1917 with the 49th Squadron. He was stationed first at Bellevue near Arras, and then near Dunkerque, where the squadron coöperated with the Navy in blocking Ostend. In June 1918 he was promoted to Captain and Flight Commander in the 98th Squadron, R.A.F., and shortly after went to the French front on the Marne. On July 16th he was reported missing while flying near Dormans, where it is believed he was killed in action on the same day.

FRANCIS VIVIAN MORTON Dec. 11, 1896—Nov. 10, 1917

Bombardier, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of J. D. Morton; b. Portage la Prairie; ed. Bridgewater P.S., Model School and Oakwood H.S., Toronto, University of Toronto Schools; University College 1913-15; Theta Delta Chi; C.O.T.C.

In March 1915 he enlisted with several other University men in the 25th Battery, 7th Brigade, C.F.A. Reaching France with the same unit in January 1916, he served in it continuously for nearly two years, through the battles of St. Eloi, Ypres, the Somme, Vimy, Fresnoy, and Hill 70. He was killed at Passchendaele, when he was in charge of his gun which was in action on the afternoon of November 10th. A German shell burst a few feet behind the gun, and a piece of shrapnel pierced his heart instantly killing him. Buried at Vlamertinghe.

HEBER HAVELOCK MOSHIER Jan. 11, 1889—Aug. 29, 1918

Lieut.-Colonel, Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of David D. Moshier; b. Sombra, Lambton Co.; ed. Sarnia P.S.S. and C.I.; Medicine 1905-09, M.B.; Staff, Toronto General Hospital 1909-11; Practising at Calgary 1912-13; Professor of Physiology, University of Alberta 1914-16; md. Ida Winnifred Griffith.

In the spring of 1916 he was appointed to No. 11 Field Ambulance, C.A.M.C., as Major and Second in command, and went overseas in May. He reached France in August, and served through the Somme, Vimy-Lens, and Passchendaele campaigns. In October 1917 he was appointed to the command of his unit, as Acting Lieut.-Colonel, the full rank being confirmed some months later. In April 1918 he was Mentioned in Despatches for his services in the field. After serving through the battle of Amiens, he was killed in the advance from before Arras near Wancourt as he was going forward to choose the position of an advanced dressing station. Buried at Villers-au-Bois.

CHARLES ALEXANDER MOSS June 19, 1872—Oct. 24, 1916

Major, Third Battalion.

Son of the late Chief Justice Sir Charles Moss; b. Toronto; ed. Model School, Upper Canada College; University College 1890-94, B.A. (Pol. Sc.); Zeta Psi; Rugby and Lacrosse colours; LL.B. 1895; Barrister, firm of Aylesworth, Wright, Moss & Thompson; Bencher, Law Society, 10th Regt., Lieut.; md. Elizabeth Britton.

In the summer of 1915 he was appointed as Captain to the 81st Battalion, and was later promoted Major. When his unit was broken up in England, he joined the 3rd Battalion on July 1st, 1916. To go to France he had reverted to the rank of Captain but was again promoted Major on the field. On October 8th he was wounded before Courcellette, and was removed to hospital in Rouen, where some days later he succumbed to his injuries. Buried at Rouen.

GORDON MUCKLOW Aug. 28, 1892—Sept. 27, 1918

Private, Seventh Battalion.

Son of Edward Mucklow; b. Bury, Lancs., Eng.; ed. Malvern College, Eng.; Ontario Agricultural College 1911-15, B.S.A.; Farming in British Columbia.

After being rejected several times owing to defective eyesight, he was accepted for service in October 1917, when he joined the British Columbia Regiment, in which he was later promoted Corporal. After reverting in rank he joined the 7th Battalion in France on August 20th, 1918. A month later he was killed in action as the battalion was advancing across open ground at Haynecourt near Cambrai. Buried at Marquion.

ARTHUR EDWARD MUIR Jan. 19, 1889—May 21, 1915

Lieutenant, Fifteenth Battalion.

Son of Robert Muir; b. Winnipeg; ed. Winnipeg P.S. and C.I.; University College 1908-09; First Rugby colours; Zeta Psi; Manitoba College; Winnipeg Rowing Club Rugby team; In grain business and automobile agencies.

In September 1914 he was appointed to the 15th Battalion and went overseas in October. Reaching France early in 1915 he served through the battle of Ypres in April. At Festubert he was wounded in the knee early in the day, and later in the throat. Keeping on, he was then killed in the charge by machine gun bullets. Buried at point s. 27, B.2.O., near Festubert.

HAROLD GLADSTONE MURRAY March 7, 1894—Dec. 16, 1916

Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of Alexander George Murray, LL.B.; b. Toronto; ed. Wellesley Street P.S., Toronto; Gore Bay P.S. and Contn. Sch.; Owen Sound C.I.; University College 1911-15, B.A. (Math. & Phys.); Class Asst. in Physics, 1914-15; C.O.T.C.

In the spring of 1915 he enlisted in No. 4, University of Toronto, General Hospital, with which he served for several months as assistant X-ray operator. Leaving Salonica he returned to England to train for a commission in the Canadian Field Artillery. He was attached in March 1916 to the 1st Divisional Trench Mortar Brigade, in which he served first on the Ypres front, and then as commander of 'Y' Battery at the Somme. He then transferred to the R. Flying Corps and early in December joined the 12th Squadron as Observer. A few days afterwards, when he was on photography patrol on the Arras front, his machine was attacked by three enemy planes. It is believed that he succeeded in shooting down one of these, but the controls of his own machine were damaged, and though the Pilot brought it back over the lines, it crashed from a hundred feet, instantly killing him. Buried at Avesnes-le-Comte.

JOHN CARR NEWCOMBE Dec. 22, 1893—March 21, 1918

Second Lieutenant, Royal Engineers.

Son of the late Octavius Newcombe; b. Toronto; ed. Rosedale P.S., Lansdowne P.S., Model School, Harbord Street C.I., Toronto; Applied Science 1911-12, 1913-16, B.A.Sc. (Mech. Eng.).

He enlisted in the University of Toronto Overseas Training Company and went overseas in August 1916 with a draft of candidates for Imperial commissions. In January 1917 he was appointed to the R. Engineers, and the next month joined the 12th Field Company, 6th Division, in France, and served in it on the Lens sector. After coming home on leave in November, he returned to France early in January 1918, but remained at the R.E. Base, Rouen, for three months. While there he prepared a manual on "Man and Vehicle Loads for R.E. Stores" which was adopted by all the Allied armies. He rejoined his unit on the Arras front early in March. About ten days later, on the first day of the great German offensive, he was killed at Morchies, near Bapaume. On the opening of the attack his company moved up through an intense enemy barrage, to occupy trenches in support of the Infantry. Later in the day, while defending these positions he was wounded in the foot and arm, and three of his own men were carrying him to a dressing station when just as they reached the door a shell burst, killing him and two of the bearers and severely wounding the third.

HARRY REID NICHOLSON April 12, 1896—April 24, 1917

Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of William Nicholson; b. Hamilton; ed. Ryerson P.S., Hamilton, and C.I.; Applied Science 1913-16; Beta Theta Pi; C.O.T.C.

In April 1916 he was appointed to the 234th Battalion and went overseas in August. He joined the 1st Pioneer Battalion in France in September and served with it on the Somme front. He was transferred in February 1917 to the R. Flying Corps, 20th Squadron, as Observer. On April 24th, 1917, he and his Pilot were with the squadron flying in battle formation over the German lines about twenty miles from Vimy. They became separated from the others and were attacked by three enemy machines. They succeeded in bringing down one of these but in doing so had to drop to a lower level, where they were shot down by the other planes.

ARMINE FRANK GIBSON NORRIS April 20, 1893—Sept. 28, 1918

Lieutenant, First Battalion, Canadian Machine Gun Corps.

Only son of Frank H. Norris; b. Chapeau; ed. Mattawa P.S., Sault Ste. Marie P.S. and H.S., Orillia H.S.; Applied Science 1914-15; C.O.T.C.

In March 1915 he enlisted in the Machine Gun Section of the 20th Battalion, with which he went to France in September. During the following winter and spring he served on the front south of Ypres and in the Salient, taking part in the battle of St. Eloi. In the autumn he went through the Somme campaign and was made Lance-Corporal after Courcellette. He was recommended for promotion early in 1917, and receiving his commission in the Machine Gun Corps, trained in England. In March 1918 he returned to France and was posted to No. 2 M.G. Company. After going through the battles of Amiens and Arras, he was killed near Haynecourt before Cambrai. Having pushed his guns forward as far as possible under heavy fire he went on to make a reconnaissance in order that he might find a safe approach for his men, when he was shot through the heart. Buried at Crucifix Cemetery, near Sains-les-Marquion. It was announced after his death that the Military Cross had been awarded to him for his service at Buissy Switch in the battle of Arras, when he took charge of his battery after its commander had been wounded, brought his guns forward to the exposed flank of the infantry which he was supporting, and by his skilful dispositions under heavy fire assured their protection.

HERBERT BRAID NORTHWOOD Sept. 9, 1884—Sept. 27, 1918

Lieutenant, Seventy-eighth Battalion.

Son of William Northwood; b. Ottawa; ed. Waller Street P.S., and C.I., Ottawa; University College 1904-05; Chi Delta Psi; Manufacturer's Agent, Real Estate and Insurance; 43rd Regt., Lieut.

He was appointed to the 77th Battalion in August 1915, and went overseas in June 1916. In July he joined the 78th Battalion and went to France a month later. He was appointed Bombing Officer to the 12th Brigade at the end of the year. He served at the Somme and through the battles of Vimy and Passchendaele. From March to June 1918 he was with the 1st Divisional and the Canadian Corps Headquarters, and then returned to his battalion. After serving through the battle of Amiens he fell in the advance from Arras to Cambrai, being instantly killed by a shell fragment as he was leading his men, on the morning of September 27th near Quarry Wood during the storming of the Canal du Nord. Buried at Quarry Wood. He had been recommended for an award for his courage and skill as Brigade Bombing Officer at Passchendaele, and after his death it was announced that he had been given the Military Cross for his consistent good work during two years' service at the front.

JAMES HENRY OLDHAM Sept. 29, 1884—Sept. 24, 1916

Captain, Third Battalion.

Son of the late James Henry Oldham; b. Manchester, Eng.; ed. Cobourg P.S. and C.I.; Victoria College 1904-08, B.A. (Pol. Sc.); Vice-President, College Literary Society; College Athletic executive; Phi Delta Theta; Law School; LL.B. 1912; Barrister, firm of Ritchie, Ludwig & Ballantyne, Toronto; Working in the Evangelia Settlement, Toronto; C.O.T.C.; 10th Regt., Lieut.

He was appointed in the summer of 1915 to the 83rd Battalion, in which he was promoted Captain, and acted as Quarter-Master. Going overseas in April 1916, when his unit was broken up he joined the 3rd Battalion in France on July 1st. After a brief service at the front he fell at Courcellette. While holding an enemy trench he was instantly killed in trying to recover a bomb, from which he endeavoured to save his men. Buried at Pozières.

JOHN ANTHONY NINIAN ORMSBY Oct. 15, 1893—Aug. 2, 1916

Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of John Y. Ormsby; b. Danville, P.Q.; ed. Upper Canada College; Applied Science 1912-15; Alpha Delta Phi; 10th Regt., Lieut.

In January 1915 he was appointed as Lieutenant to the Eaton Machine Gun Battery and went overseas in June. He transferred in England to the R. Flying Corps and joined the 60th Squadron on the Somme front in July 1916. Early in the next month he was killed while on reconnaissance over the enemy's lines. Buried at Beaumetz.

HAROLD HEBER OWEN July 2, 1894—Jan. 31, 1916

Lieutenant, Seventh Battalion.

Only son of the Rev. Cecil C. Owen, B.A.; b. Toronto; ed. London P.S., Vancouver P.S.S. and H.S.; Vancouver College; Medicine 1912-14; Wycliffe College; Faculty Baseball team; College Hockey team; Boxing and wrestling; Preparing for medical missionary work; 6th Regt., Lieut.

In August 1914 he was appointed as Lieutenant to the 7th Battalion, but on the reduction of its establishment he resigned his commission and joined the 3rd Field Ambulance as Staff Sergeant. Reverting to the rank of Sergeant, he went to France in February 1915 and served with the Ambulance through the battles of Ypres and Festubert. He then obtained his commission again and joined the 7th Battalion at Givenchy a few days after the battle of June 15th. Owing to his medical experience he frequently gave first aid to the wounded. During the following months he organised night patrols and trench raids with such success that his battalion had control of 'No Man's Land'. On the night of his death he, with a small group of scouts, met a working party of the enemy and drove them back to the trenches, from which they opened fire with machine guns. When two of his party were wounded he ordered them all to withdraw while he covered their retreat with his revolver. Seeing that after a few moments he was not following, the two wounded men and another made their way back and found him lying on the ground shot through the head. They carried him back, but he died before they could reach the trench. Buried at Red Lodge. He had been recommended for a decoration, and was twice Mentioned in Despatches, on December 31st, 1915, and April 30th, 1916.

JOHN FERGUSON PALLING Aug. 14, 1860—Jan. 31, 1918

Captain, Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of the late Charles Palling; b. Orillia; ed. Barrie C.I.; Trinity Medical College 1884-88, M.D., C.M.; Fellow, T.M.C.; Practising at Barrie; Registrar of deeds for Simcoe County; md. Margaret Anne Steele.

In January 1917 he was appointed to the C.A.M.C. as Medical Officer to the 177th Battalion, with which he went overseas in April. For some months he was on the staff of the Canadian Convalescent Hospital at Buxton, till he was taken ill in December and died in London a few weeks later. Buried at Innisfil.

BALFOUR MALCOLM PALMER Aug. 22, 1894—Aug. 10, 1918

Son of D. F. Palmer; b. Toronto; ed. Fern Avenue p.s., Parkdale c.l., Toronto; Victoria College 1913-16; C.O.T.C.; 38th Regt., Lieut.

He was appointed as Lieutenant to the 198th Battalion in February 1916, and went overseas a year later. In April 1918 he joined the 2nd Mounted Rifles on the Lens-Arras front. On the third day of the battle of Amiens he was wounded in the attack on Le Quesnel, and died shortly afterwards at a dressing station. Buried at Bouchoir.

GEORGE REGINALD PARKE Jan. 23, 1889—March 24, 1917

Lieutenant, Eighteenth Battalion.

Son of Walder Parke; b. Hamilton; ed. Hamilton p.s. and c.l.; Ontario College of Pharmacy 1910-11, PH.M.B.; Druggist, firm of Parke and Parke 1906-16; 91st Regt., Lieut.

He was appointed to the 173rd Battalion in April 1916 and went overseas in November. In January 1917 he joined the 18th Battalion on the Vimy front. He was in charge of a raiding party before day-break on March 24th at Neuville St. Vaast. On reaching the enemy's parapet he was severely wounded and ordered his men to retire. Two of them who stayed with him were killed and their bodies were recovered some days after when the trenches were captured. He was not found, but it was reported later from German sources that he had been taken prisoner and died on the same day.

ARTHUR ALLAN PARKER Oct. 4, 1892—Oct. 12, 1918

Captain, Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of A. H. Parker; b. Humber Bay, Etobicoke; ed. Mimico p.s., HumberSide c.l., Toronto; Medicine 1909-14, M.B.; Staff of Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

In February 1916 he was appointed to the C.A.M.C. and was first on duty at the Exhibition Camp Hospital, Toronto. He was then attached to the 86th, Machine Gun, Battalion, and went overseas in May. In England he was on the staff of Etchingham Hospital. Reaching France in December 1916 he served continuously with the 6th Field Ambulance. He went through the Vimy—Lens campaign of 1917 and the battle of Passchendaele. He was awarded the Military Cross for his service on August 21-22, 1917, in clearing the wounded from his regimental aid post under heavy fire near Lens. After serving in 1918 through the battles of Amiens, Arras and Cambrai, he was wounded in the head and arm, and succumbed to his injuries at Arras. Buried at Ficheux.

When the war began he tried to join the Canadian Force, but was rejected because of his eyesight. He then went to England, and after being twice refused on the same grounds, was accepted early in 1915 in the Public School Corps. From this he was transferred to the East Surrey Regiment, in which he trained for some months. He then received a commission, being appointed to the King's Own Royal Lancaster Regiment in July 1916. He went to France immediately, and in the next month was killed while leading his platoon in attack on a German trench before Albert on the Somme front.

MURRAY HULME PATERSON Nov. 17, 1891—Sept. 16, 1917

Captain, Royal and Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of D. S. Paterson; b. Chatham; ed. Chatham P.S. and C.I.; Medicine 1909-14, M.B.; Staff, St. Michael's and Sick Children's Hospitals, Toronto.

In May 1915 he was appointed to the R.A.M.C. and went to France in July. For two years he served as Medical Officer with the 1st Rifle Brigade. He was awarded the Military Cross for his service on July 1st, 1916, when he assisted in carrying out the wounded under heavy fire. One soldier that he was carrying was killed and another was hit. He kept at the work for many hours, attending to the wounded till he was completely exhausted. In the summer of 1917 he transferred to the C.A.M.C. Shortly afterwards he was accidentally killed by a fast train when walking on the railway track. Buried at Orpington.

EDGAR WILLIAM PATTEN March 21, 1891—Oct. 26, 1917

Lieutenant, Fifty-eighth Battalion.

Son of Charles G. Patten; b. Morriston; ed. Morriston P.S., St. George Contn. Sch., Brantford C.I.; University College 1912-16, B.A. (Math. & Phys.); Edward Blake Scholar, Alexander T. Fulton Scholar, William Mulock Scholar, A.A.A. Scholar; Gold Medallist; C.O.T.C.

In March 1916 he enlisted in the 215th Battalion, and was promoted Corporal in June, and Sergeant in July. He received his commission in August, passing his examinations with distinction. He went overseas in a draft of officers in September and crossed to France in July 1917, joining the 58th Battalion on the Lens front. On the day of his death at Bellevue Spur, Passchendaele, as he went forward with his platoon the officer on his left was killed and the advance was held up. After rallying his men he found that in order to make further progress it was necessary to bring forward a machine gun, the crew of which had all been killed or wounded. He carried it up and was getting it into position when he was instantly killed by a sniper. Buried where he fell. All of the sixteen officers who went over with him became casualties.

CHARLES FORREST PATTERSON Aug. 4, 1896—Nov. 13, 1917

Sapper, Canadian Engineers, Signals.

Son of the Rev. J. R. Patterson; b. Nelles Corners; ed. Thorold P.S., Brantford P.S. and C.I., St. Catherines C.I.; Victoria College 1914-15; C.O.T.C.

In December 1915 he enlisted in the 4th Divisional Signal Company, Canadian Engineers. After being promoted to Corporal he reverted in rank on going to France, where he was attached to the 11th Infantry Brigade. He reached the front line on April 10th, 1917, the day after the attack on Vimy Ridge, and served as a linesman from then onwards through the following engagements before Lens and at Hill 70. On the day of his death at Passchendaele he with two others was laying a line between the advanced Brigade Report centre and the Headquarters of the 75th Battalion which was in support. The work had to be done under heavy shell fire over five-hundred yards of open country. As it was nearing completion a heavy barrage fire opened, with the beginning of the German counter-attack. He persisted in carrying on to finish his task and had almost reached the pill-box with which connection was being made, when he was instantly killed by a shell. Of the thirteen signallers operating from this pill-box, twelve were killed or seriously wounded. Buried at Tyne Cote cemetery, Hill Crest Farm.

ROBERT DOUGLAS PATTERSON Aug. 4, 1890—June 14, 1917

Sergeant, Canadian Army Service Corps.

Son of the late Robert L. Patterson; b. Toronto; ed. Upper Canada College; Applied Science 1907-08; Victoria Realty Co.; Argonaut Rowing, Rugby and Hockey colours.

He enlisted in July 1916 in the Army Service Corps, Mechanical Transport, and went overseas in September. He served on the Flanders front with the C.A.S.C., 8th Railway Troops. He was instantly killed by a shell while waiting with his car near an ammunition dump at St. Quentin, Belgium. Buried at Wulverghem.

NORMAN HOWARD PAWLEY Dec. 18, 1888—April 12, 1917

Lieutenant, Forty-fourth Battalion.

Son of William H. Pawley; b. Alton; ed. Alloa p.s., Brampton h.s.; Ontario Agricultural College 1909-11, 1913-15, B.S.A.; College Rugby and Hockey teams; Seed Commissioner, Saskatchewan; 95th Regt., Lieut.

He was appointed early in 1916 to the 195th Battalion and for some time was head of the recruiting staff of that unit. Going overseas in November he soon after joined the 44th Battalion on the Somme front. From there he went to the Arras—Vimy area, and while serving there was awarded the Military Cross on February 3rd, 1917, for his service during a trench raid in which he personally captured a machine gun. On the third day after the capture of Vimy Ridge, he was wounded in the head. As he was being carried back he was again wounded and died before he could reach the dressing station. Buried at Villers-au-Bois.

THOMAS WILLIAM PARKER PEACOCK March 26, 1891—May 6, 1917

Lieutenant, Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of the late Christopher Robertson Peacock; b. Stroud; ed. Stroud p.s., Bradford h.s., Barrie C.I.; Medicine 1911-16, M.B.; C.O.T.C.

On graduating in 1916 he was appointed to the C.A.M.C. in Toronto Military District and served at Niagara Camp during the summer of that year. In March 1917 he was transferred to Military District No. 13 at Calgary, and was expecting to leave with a draft of troops in the middle of May. He was instantly killed in a motor accident at Calgary, and his brother Lt.-Col. M. B. Peacock was seriously injured at the same time. Buried at Stroud.

GORDON MACKENZIE PEARCE Sept. 30, 1896—April 26, 1917

Lieutenant, One-hundred-and-twenty-fourth Pioneer Battalion.

Son of William K. Pearce; b. Seaforth; ed. Seaforth p.s., St. Thomas p.s., Highfield School, Hamilton, University of Toronto Schools; Applied Science 1914-15; C.O.T.C.; G.G.B.G., Lieut.

In November 1915 he was appointed to the 124th Battalion, and went overseas the following summer. He went to France with his unit in March 1917. A month later he fell near Vimy. He was in charge of a working party in an advanced and exposed position on the Souchez Road, when the enemy began shelling. He was instantly killed by the second shell, and his Sergeant-Major was fatally wounded. Buried at Villers-au-Bois.

HORACE PEARSON July 28, 1897—Oct. 14, 1916

Private, Forty-fourth Battalion.

Son of Henry Pearson; b. Barwell, Eng.; ed. Barwell Wesleyan School; Queen Alexandra P.S., Riverdale C.I., Toronto; Applied Science 1915-16; C.O.T.C.

Before completing his first year he enlisted in February 1916 with the Cyclists, and went overseas in April. After a brief period with the 74th, he transferred to the 44th Battalion, and reached France in August. He served for a short time on the Ypres front and then went to the Somme. He fell at Courcellette during an artillery bombardment, when a shell burst in the front line, instantly killing him and several of his companions. Buried near the place where he fell.

HENRY MARTYN PECK Aug. 5, 1893—Sept. 28, 1918

Private, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of the Rev. E. J. Peck; b. Ashbourne, Eng.; ed. Monkton Combe School, Bath, Eng., and Barrie C.I.; Applied Science 1911-15, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.—Hon.); Water-polo team; Swimming colours; Surveying, and with Imperial Munitions Board; C.O.T.C.

He enlisted in January 1917 in the 73rd Battery, C.F.A., and went overseas in April. He then transferred to the P.P.C.L.I. and went to France in August. He was invalided shortly afterwards to England, where he remained till September 1918. A few days after he had rejoined his battalion at the front he was wounded by an anti-tank bullet when he was acting as runner during the operations near Raillencourt, and died at No. 30 Casualty Clearing Station. Buried at Bucquoy Road Cemetery, Ficheux.

THOMAS WILLIAM PENHALE May 11, 1893—April 15, 1917

Second Lieutenant, King's Royal Rifle Corps.

Son of William H. Penhale; b. Exeter; ed. Stephen P.S., Exeter H.S., Clinton C.I.; Connor Machine Co.; Applied Science 1914-16; C.O.T.C.

He went overseas in the spring of 1916 with the second draft of C.O.T.C. candidates for Imperial commissions. After his training was completed he was appointed to the King's Royal Rifle Corps. He went to France early in December, joining the 13th Battalion of the Regiment, and reached the trenches at Christmas. After a brief service at the front in the Arras sector, he was severely wounded in the thigh at Monchy in the battle of Arras on April 11th, while gallantly leading his men, and succumbed to his injuries four days later in St. John's Ambulance Hospital at Etaples, where he was buried.

STANLEY JAMES PEPLER Nov. 17, 1889—March 6, 1917

Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of Thomas S. G. Pepler; b. Toronto; ed. Port Hope P.S., Trinity College School; Applied Science 1908-11, Diploma (Mech. Eng.); Assistant Engineer, Toronto Harbour Commission; Corps of Guides, Lieut.

In February 1916 he was appointed to the 4th Divisional Cyclists, and went overseas in April. After being for a time with the 51st Battalion, he transferred to the R. Flying Corps in August. He went to France in January 1917, joining the 43rd Squadron, and served mostly on the front east of Aire and for a time on the Somme. On March 6th he was flying in a formation of five over the lines near Arleux, when they were attacked by eight German machines. As he was engaged with one of the enemy planes another came from behind and shot him down. A German airman dropped a message later saying that his body had been found by his machine and buried where he fell.

FREDERICK CHARLES PEPIATT April 21, 1880—May 9, 1917

Lieutenant, Eighteenth Battalion, att. Fourth Trench Mortar Battery.

Son of the late Philip Peppiatt; b. Parkdale; University College 1908-09; Wycliffe College; Contractor; 20th Regt., Lieut.; md. Margaret Louise Buchner.

In August 1915 he was appointed as Lieutenant to the 76th Battalion, and went overseas in April 1916. Shortly afterwards he joined the 18th Battalion in France, from which he went later to the 4th Trench Mortar Battery. He served through the battles of the Somme and Vimy Ridge. As he was going round to see to the comfort of his men he was struck by a piece of flying shrapnel and instantly killed. Buried near Arleux-en-Gohelle.

CECIL VICTOR PERRY April 18, 1892—April 23, 1917

Second Lieutenant, Royal Field Artillery.

Son of Richard S. Perry; b. King Tp., York Cy.; ed. Bathurst Street, Lansdowne, Huron Street P.S.s., Harbord Street C.I., Toronto; Applied Science 1910-14, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.—Hon.); Engineering Society executive; Year President; 'Varsity' staff; Harriers colours; Manager, Track team; Civil Engineer in Northern Ontario.

In March 1915 he enlisted in the Eaton Machine Gun Battery, and went overseas as Bombardier in June. He then obtained his commission in the R. Field Artillery in November, and being appointed to the 120th Battery, 27th Brigade, 5th Division, went to France in March 1916. He served through the battle of the Somme, and distinguished himself on August 18th at Edge Trench in Delville Wood, when he took charge of some Infantry whose officers had all become casualties, and assisted them to hold the position which they had won. He was Forward Observation Officer at Switch Trench on September 15th, and when a party of enemy snipers in a redoubt was holding up the Infantry, he borrowed rifles and with three others worked round to a point that commanded the redoubt, preventing the enemy from shooting and enabling the Infantry to advance. For these actions he was awarded the Military Cross. He fell in the following spring, at Vimy Ridge, when a shell struck his dug-out killing him and three other officers. Buried at Vimy Cemetery.

VALENTINE RALPH PFRIMMER June 16, 1892—May 1, 1917

Lieutenant, Canadian Field Artillery and Royal Flying Corps.

Son of the late Jacob Pfrimmer; b. Downie Tp., Perth Cy.; ed. Ellice, Perth Cy., P.S., Stratford C.I.; Applied Science 1912-15; Athletic executive; Faculty Association Football and Hockey teams; First and Second Association Football colours; C.O.T.C.

In March 1915 he enlisted in the 25th Battery, 7th Brigade, C.F.A., and was promoted to Corporal and Acting Sergeant before going overseas in the following summer. He obtained his commission in England, and going to France early in 1916 joined the First Divisional Ammunition Column, with which he served for nine months on the Ypres and Somme fronts. At the end of the year he was seconded to the R. Flying Corps as Observer, and served with the 8th Squadron. On May 1st, 1917, he was on patrol over the lines when his machine was hit, and fell, instantly killing both him and his Pilot. Buried at Warlincourt Halte.

HOWARD VINCENT PICKERING Sept. 5, 1884—Oct. 26, 1917

Lieutenant, Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Son of the late Joseph Pickering; b. Arkona; ed. Tapleytown P.S., Hamilton C.I.; Teaching at Grimsby; University College 1906-10, B.A. (Eng. & Hist.—Mods.); Year Secretary; Treasurer, U.C. He was appointed in November 1915 to the 110th Battalion, in which he was made Assistant Adjutant. Going overseas in 1916, he joined the 4th Mounted Rifles in April 1917 on the Vimy front, and served in the engagements south of Lens and at Hill 70. He fell at Passchendaele, being instantly killed by a sniper as he was leading his men in the attack on the morning of October 26th. Buried near the place where he fell.

HENRY ERROL BEAUCHAMP PLATT May 16, 1891—May 5, 1916

Lieutenant, Third Battalion.

Son of Arthur T. Platt; b. London; ed. Talbot Street P.S., London, Queen Victoria P.S. and Parkdale C.I., Toronto; University College 1909-13, B.A. (Pol. Sc.); XIII Club; Historical Club; First and Second Rugby colours; Psi Delta Psi; Argonaut Rugby team; Mackenzie Fellow in Political Science; M.A. 1914; Law School—with firm of Rowell, Reid, Wood & Wright; 2nd Regt., Lieut.

On the outbreak of the war he received his commission in the Queen's Own Rifles, and took an active part in organising the University Company which trained with that regiment during the autumn of 1914. After a period of guard duty at Toronto Island he was then appointed to the 35th Battalion, and went overseas with a draft from that unit in June 1915. With him went Lieut. G. L. B. Mackenzie, also of this University, who served with him for several months and was killed on the same front. He reached France in October and, except for a period of special training at St. Omer, served through the following winter and early spring in the trenches. At the time of his death he was Battalion Intelligence Officer and in command of the regimental scouts and snipers. A German attack before Ypres was expected early in May, and on the night of his death he with two other men was making an important reconnaissance near Hill 60, when he was shot in the head by a sniper. Every man of the company volunteered to go out and bring him in. Three of them carried him back unconscious to the lines, and he died within a few hours. Buried at Lyssenthoek.

ROY IRVINE POAST March 29, 1897—July 18, 1916

Private, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of Richard Poast; b. Omeme; ed. Emily P.S., Omeme H.S., Lindsay C.I.; Victoria College 1914-15; C.O.T.C.

In September 1915 he enlisted in the 4th Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and joined the battalion on the Ypres front in May 1916. After going through the battle of Sanctuary Wood, he was killed at Mount Sorrel. With five others he had held an advanced point of the trenches for four days till it became untenable. As they were about to withdraw one of his party was buried by a shell explosion. He was helping to dig his comrade out from the broken trench in full view of the enemy, when he was instantly killed by a second shell. Buried where he fell.

WILSON PORTER March 28, 1892—March 24, 1918

Second Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of Wilson Porter; b. Port Dover; ed. Port Dover P.S. and H.S.; Medicine 1915-16; C.O.T.C.

He went overseas in March 1916 with the second draft of C.O.T.C. candidates for Imperial commissions. Later in the year he was appointed to the R. Field Artillery, and early in 1917 went to France, where he served with the 52nd Brigade. He was employed in command of a hundred men moving up guns and ammunition to the ground which the enemy had evacuated before Arras. He was wounded in his fourth engagement during this battle, on May 12th. On his recovery he transferred to the R. Flying Corps in October, and returning to France served in the 56th Squadron. On March 24th, 1918, he went out flying a single-seated machine in a formation of twelve, of which his alone failed to return. He was last seen attacking one of the enemy's planes, and several months later it was reported that he had been killed in action on that day.

JAMES EDWARD POTVIN Aug. 10, 1895—June 19, 1917

Flight Sub-Lieutenant, Royal Naval Air Service.

Son of the late Peter Potvin; b. Midland; ed. Midland P.S. and H.S.; University College 1913-15; Chi Delta Psi.

Though for some time past he had been in ill health, he began training at Dayton, Ohio, and San Antonio, Texas. Being appointed in April 1916 to the R. Naval Air Service, he reached the advanced sea-plane base at Dunkerque in December. He was Mentioned in Despatches in April 1917 for his services in an engagement off the coast. About this time he went in a single-seater machine to search for an officer who had been forced to come down in German waters. After finding him and reporting to the station he returned and drove off three enemy two-seater planes that were about to capture the officer, who was eventually rescued. On June 19th he was missing after a battle over the sea ten miles from Ostend.

HAROLD BRANT PRESTON Aug. 18, 1893—Sept. 27, 1918

Lieutenant, Fifty-fourth Battalion.

Son of T. H. Preston; b. Brantford; ed. Brantford, Victoria P.S., and C.I.; University College 1910-14, B.A. (Pol. Sc.); Second Basket-ball colours; Phi Delta Theta; 38th Regt., Lieut.; md. Jean Paterson.

He was appointed in the summer of 1915 to the 125th Battalion, and went overseas in August 1916. In April 1918 he joined the 54th Battalion in France. He was awarded the Military Cross for his service at the Drocourt-Quéant line on September 2nd, when he took command of his company after all the other officers had become casualties, and successfully led it in the attack and captured the sunken road. This was not one of his company's tasks, but seeing that the company in front was held up, causing a check to the whole line, he immediately grasped the situation and took prompt action. At the end of the same month he was killed in action, being shot through the heart during the fighting at Bourlon Wood. Buried at Bourlon.

EVAN EDWARD PRICE Nov. 10, 1896—Sept. 11, 1919

Lieutenant, Royal Canadian Dragoons.

Only son of the late Lewis Price; b. Mount Elgin; ed. Upper Canada College; Trinity College 1915-16; G.G.B.G., Lieut.

In his first year he was appointed to the Mounted Rifles Depot, and went overseas in July 1916. In January 1917 he joined the R. Canadian Dragoons on the Somme front, and in March won the Military Cross for his service in a mounted action near Roisel, when he attacked a party of the enemy and dispersed it, making many prisoners. Later he was awarded a Bar to the Cross for his courage and initiative on the Hindenburg Line at the end of June, when as Brigade Intelligence Officer he made reconnaissances for five nights in succession on the enemy's wire, and on the night of the raid led the first party into the trenches, where he remained through the engagement, obtaining valuable information. He served during the autumn first at Passchendaele and then in both battles of Cambrai. On February 13th, 1918, he won the Distinguished Service Order for his service in another raid, near Havrincourt, when for three succeeding nights he made reconnaissances, and in the raid itself led forward parties and blew gaps in two belts of the wire, ensuring the success of the attack. He was severely wounded at the Bois de Moreuil before Amiens on March 28th. Being disabled from further service he was invalided home in October, and died after an operation some months later. After his death his name was Mentioned in Despatches.

HOWARD PRIMROSE PRIMROSE Jan. 19, 1895—May 26, 1916

Lieutenant, Fourth Battalion.

Only son of Dr. Alexander Primrose, Dean of Faculty of Medicine; b. Toronto; ed. Upper Canada College; University College 1914-15; Phi Kappa Pi; 10th Regt., Lieut.

In March 1915 he was appointed to the 36th Battalion, and went overseas in June. While in England he was attached to the Ordnance Corps at Bramshott from October 1915 to February 1916. In May he joined the 4th Battalion in France. A few days later he was killed in action by the explosion of an enemy's shell in the trenches before Ypres. Buried at Reninghelst.

JOHN ALEXANDER PROCTOR April 28, 1894—March 31, 1919

Lieutenant, One-hundred-and-sixteenth Battalion.

Son of the late John Alexander Proctor; b. Beaverton; ed. Beaverton P.S. and H.S.; University College 1914-16; C.O.T.C.; 34th Regt., Lieut.

At the end of 1915 he was appointed to the 116th Battalion with which he went overseas in July 1916. Reaching France in February 1917, he served as Battalion Scout Officer through the battles of Vimy, Hill 70 and Passchendaele in that year, and the battles of Amiens and Arras in 1918. He was wounded on September 23rd in the advance from Arras. While awaiting his return home he was accidentally killed in England. Buried at Beaverton.

DAVID EDGAR PYE Jan. 3, 1889—May 4, 1917

Private, Twenty-ninth Battalion.

Son of Alfred Charles Pye; b. Arnprior; ed. Arnprior P.S. and H.S.; Applied Science 1906-10, Diploma (Civ. Eng.); With James Laidlaw, M.E., Cranbrook, B.C., 1910; P.L.S.; D.L.S.; Field Engineering Co., Victoria, B.C., 1914.

He enlisted in June 1916 in the 103rd Battalion, and went overseas the next month. In October he joined the 29th, Vancouver, Battalion at the front. He served as section leader through the battle of Vimy Ridge and the fighting of the following days. When in the trenches under a heavy bombardment he was instantly killed. Letters from his friends bore witness to the influence he exercised over all his comrades, and he had been recommended both for promotion as N.C.O. and for a commission but each time had declined. Buried at Fresnoy.

ARTHUR HARPER QUA Dec. 2, 1887—June 4, 1916

Corporal, Canadian Engineers.

Son of the late Arthur Qua; b. Paris; ed. Paris P.S. and H.S.; Applied Science 1904-08; Y.M.C.A. and Student Volunteer work; Canadian Westinghouse Co., Hamilton.

In August 1914 he enlisted in the 1st Field Company, C.E., and went overseas with the First Contingent. He reached France in February 1915 and served through the battles of Ypres, Festubert and Givenchy, and then continuously in the Ypres area. Because of his efficient work and his influence with his comrades he had been chosen for further promotion and was about to leave for England to train for a commission, when the battle of Sanctuary Wood began. He was killed by a shell when engaged with a party in digging, under heavy fire, a new support line from Knob Farm to Rudkin House. Buried at 'Railway Dug-outs' near Zillebeke.

HENRY CHARLES QUAIL June 1, 1892—Feb. 18, 1918

Second Lieutenant, Royal Engineers.

Son of John T. Quail; b. Toronto; ed. Lansdowne and Dewson Street P.S., Harbord Street C.I., Toronto; Applied Science 1909-13, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); Faculty Swimming team; Assistant Engineer, Hydro-Electric Commission; 9th Horse, Lieut.

Resigning his Militia commission he enlisted in the University Overseas Training Company in January 1917, and went overseas in a draft of Imperial commission candidates in March. Being appointed to the Royal Engineers in June he went to France in August. He served with the 124th Field Company in the neighbourhood of Armentières till his death in February 1918. He was instantly killed by a shell while he was in charge of a working party that was constructing shelters at Houplines. Buried at Côte Bon Jean Cemetery, Armentières.

MATTHEW RAE July 10, 1892—March 19, 1917

Private, Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Son of the Rev. Frank Rae; b. Uddingston, Scotland; ed. Uddingston P.S., George Watson's College, Edinburgh, The Academy, Dumfries, Scotland, and Markham H.S., Ontario; Medicine 1911-12; Canadian Northern Railway, Surveying Department; G.G.B.G.

After joining the Militia in August 1914 he enlisted two months later in the 4th Mounted Rifles, and went overseas in the following spring. Reaching France in October 1915 he served as Signaller on the front south of Ypres and in the Salient. On June 2nd, 1916, at Sanctuary Wood he was wounded and taken prisoner as he was trying to save his signalling apparatus. But for that delay he might have escaped. After nine months of suffering he died as a prisoner at Courtrai and was buried in the Military Cemetery near there.

WILLIAM EMSLEY RALEY April 25, 1893—Oct. 11, 1916

Sergeant, Canadian Engineers.

Son of Charles Raley; b. Ottawa; ed. Ottawa South P.S., Lethbridge P.S. and H.S.; Applied Science 1911-15, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); C.O.T.C.

In April 1915 he enlisted in the 2nd Divisional Engineers. Reaching France in 1916 he joined the 2nd Field Company, and served on the Ypres and Somme fronts. He was promoted Sergeant in June 1916. On October 8th he was wounded by a shell as he was leading his men to work in 'No Man's Land' near Albert. Three days later he succumbed to his injuries, and was buried at Contay.

PAUL RANEY Dec. 25, 1892—Aug. 21, 1917

Second Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of the Hon. W. E. Raney, K.C.; b. West Toronto; ed. West Toronto P.S., St. Andrew's College, Oakwood C.L., Toronto; Applied Science 1910-14, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); Railway engineering.

In December 1916 he joined the R. Flying Corps, and after training at Camp Borden and in England he reached France in July 1917, being appointed to the 66th Squadron then operating in the Ypres area. A month later he was reported as missing. For a long time no details as to his fate could be ascertained, till news came from Lieut. P. O'Brien, a member of the same squadron who had been shot down and taken prisoner four days earlier and eventually had escaped from Germany. Lieut. O'Brien, while in hospital behind the German lines, had witnessed the fight between six British and more than double the number of enemy planes. After the British had maintained the uneven fight for a considerable time, four planes crashed to the ground, two on each side. Lieut. O'Brien then learnt that Paul Raney was one of those killed. Buried near Roulers.

JOHN HENRY RATZ Sept. 7, 1869—Feb. 11, 1918

Major, Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of the late John Ratz; b. Elmira; ed. Elmira P.S., Galt C.I.; University College 1888-92, B.A.; Medicine 1892-95, M.B.; M.D., C.M. Trinity; Practising at New Dundee, Elmira, Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, and Preston; 29th Regt., Major; md. Carrie Ruth Bechtel.

He was appointed to the C.A.M.C. in January 1915 and went overseas as Medical Officer to the 34th Battalion in October. After service at Shorncliffe and West Sandling, and with the Pensions Board at Bath, he returned to Canada in September 1916 and was appointed Assistant Medical Adviser to the Pensions Board at Ottawa. He died at Ottawa after a long illness on February 11th, 1918, and was buried at Elmira.

FREDERICK NEWTON READ Jan. 23, 1891—Oct. 30, 1917

Corporal, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of Aaron Read; b. Owen Sound; ed. Owen Sound P.S. and C.I.; Applied Science 1907-11, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); Town Engineer, Kerrobert, Sask.

He enlisted in May 1915 in the 2nd Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and joined the battalion at the front in August. He served as a Signaller through the following autumn and winter on the Somme and Armentières fronts. In the spring of 1916 he was invalided, from gas and poisoning, to England. After his recovery from serious illness he joined the P.P.C.L.I. Depot at Seaford, where he was employed as Regimental Sergeant Major. He was three times offered a commission in the Royal Engineers but declined, preferring to remain with his own unit. In August 1917, reverting to the rank of Private, he rejoined the battalion at the front, and shortly afterwards was promoted Corporal. He received his papers for a commission in the P.P.C.L.I., but remained with the battalion for the battle of Passchendaele. He enlisted in January 1916 in the 5th Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and joined the battalion in France in June. He was wounded on September 15th at Courcellette. After his recovery he trained for a commission, and was appointed to the R. Canadian Regiment, which he joined at the front in September 1917. He served through the battle of Passchendaele and on the Arras front. After going through the battle of Amiens, he was killed in action before Arras. Buried at Long Trench, near Monchy.

JAMES MITCHELL SOUTER March 28, 1894—April 11, 1917

Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps.

Son of James E. Souter; b. Hamilton; ed. Hamilton P.S. and C.I.; Applied Science 1914-16; C.O.T.C.; 13th Regt., Lieut.

In March 1916 he was appointed to the 133rd Battalion, and went overseas in October. He then transferred to the R. Flying Corps, and went to France in March 1917, joining first the 12th and later the 59th Squadron. After less than a month's service he was killed in action near Arras. With six other machines he went out in the direction of Douai, and none of them returned. After the Germans retired from this front he was found with his Pilot, beside the machine, and they were buried where they had fallen.

GORDON HAMILTON SOUTHAM Feb. 7, 1886—Oct. 15, 1916

Major, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of William Southam; b. Hamilton; ed. Hamilton Central P.S., Upper Canada College; University College 1903-07, B.A. (Pol. Sci.); First Rugby colours; Zeta Psi; XIII Club; Molson's Bank, Hamilton; Staff, 'Hamilton Spectator'; md. Mary M. McGibbon; 4th Bty., C.F.A., Lieut.

In the autumn of 1915 he was appointed to the 40th Battery, 8th Brigade, C.F.A., and went overseas in February 1916. He reached France in July and served on the Somme front. On October 15th, the brigade was holding a forward position before Courcellette, and was exposed to heavy shell fire. It became necessary to remove the men to cover, those of the 40th Battery being the last to leave. He was employed with Sergeant-Major N. J. Harvie, also of this University, in supervising their removal, when a shell struck killing the latter instantly, and wounding Major Southam so severely that he died a few minutes later. It was largely due to his courage and coolness that the casualties sustained by the battery were not heavier. Buried at Albert. After his death his name was Mentioned in Despatches of April 9th, 1917.

CHARLES ASHBURY SPARLING May 16, 1881—Oct. 26, 1918

He was appointed in 1916 to the 177th, Simcoe County, Battalion, in which he was promoted Captain, but reverted in rank on going overseas in April 1917. In England he joined the R. Flying Corps, and after completing his training as Pilot he was taking a special course in aerial gunnery. As he was flying at East Harling, Norfolk, his machine crashed killing him in the fall. Buried at East Harling.

LOWELL WALLACE WOOD June 5, 1891—Oct. 17, 1918

Captain, Fourth Battalion.

Son of the late John Marshall Wood; Adopted son of the late Thomas F. Wallace; b. Lloydtown; ed. Woodbridge P.S. and Contn. School; University College 1907-11, B.A. (Pol. Sci.); Lacrosse team; College Rugby team; Law School; Barrister, firm of Swinburne & Wood, Fort William; 12th Regt., Lieut.

He first enlisted in 1915 in the 94th Battalion, from which he went to take a qualifying course for a commission. In May 1916 he was appointed to the 220th, York County, Battalion, and went overseas in April 1917. He reached France a year later, joining the 4th Battalion at the front. After serving in the Arras sector, and through the battles of Amiens and Arras, he was wounded in the head, back and chest on October 2nd in the operations before Cambrai. Some days later he died from his injuries in hospital at Camiers. Buried at Etaples.

NORMAN CLARK WOOD Feb. 22, 1893—Sept. 2, 1918

Lieutenant, Imperial Tank Corps.

Son of E. Stuart Wood; b. Kamloops, B.C.; ed. Kamloops P.S. and H.S.; Queen's University 1913-14; Applied Science 1914-16; C.O.T.C.

He went overseas in March 1916 with the second draft of C.O.T.C. candidates for Imperial commissions, and was appointed to the Tank Corps, 17th Armoured Car Battalion, going to France in the summer of 1917. He was severely wounded at Cambrai in November 1917 and invalided till April 1918. In the battle of Amiens his unit was among the first to break through the enemy's lines. On September 2nd his battalion was working with the Canadian Corps, and his car was in action on the Arras—Cambrai road at Monchy when it was struck by a shell and caught fire. He brought his men to cover under heavy machine gun fire. As it slackened he was about to leave the trench to make an observation, when he was instantly killed by a machine gun bullet. Buried at Avesnes-le-Comte. After his death it was announced that the Military Cross had been awarded to him for his service on the Villers Bretonneux Road, on August 8th, when his section led the battalion into the enemy's territory, clearing the way under heavy fire. When two cars had their wheels broken, by his courage and skill he succeeded in bringing them back to the lines.

JOHN ROBINSON WOODS March 20, 1892—Oct. 24, 1917

Captain, Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Son of Sir James Woods; b. Toronto; ed. Church Street P.S., Toronto, Toronto Church School, Upper Canada College; University College 1910-14, B.A. (Com. and Fin.); Alpha Delta Phi; XIII Club; 2nd Regt., Lieut.

He was in Europe when the war began, and returning to Canada joined the Queen's Own Rifles, with which he trained till he was appointed in May 1915 to the 35th Battalion. Going overseas in October, he joined the 4th Mounted Rifles on the Ypres front in June 1916. He served at the Somme and through the battle of Vimy Ridge and the following engagements on the Lens front. On the night of October 24th, in the battle of Passchendaele, he was instantly killed by a shell which struck the support dug-out where he was stationed. Buried at St. Jean Cemetery, near Ypres.

ROY CECIL WOODWARD June 7, 1896—Aug. 11, 1918

Son of Hezekiah Woodward; b. Oshawa; ed. Cannington P.S. and H.S.; Medicine 1915-16; C.O.T.C.

Before the end of his first year, in February 1916, he enlisted in the Signallers, Canadian Engineers. He reached France in April 1918, joining the 4th Divisional Signal Company. After serving on the Lens—Arras front he was severely wounded on August 9th near Denuin Valley in the battle of Amiens. He died two days later in hospital at Dury, where he was buried.

OSMUND BARTLE WORDSWORTH May 17, 1887—April 2, 1917

Second Lieutenant, Imperial Machine Gun Corps.

Son of the Rev. Christopher Wordsworth; b. Glaston, Rutland, Eng.; ed. Langton Matravers, Dorset, and Winchester College; Trinity College, Cambridge, 1906-09, B.A., and 1911-13, M.A. 1913; Lecturer, Selwyn College, Cambridge, 1911-14; Staff, Trinity College, Toronto, 1914-15; C.O.T.C.

He returned to England on the 'Lusitania', from which he was one of the last to escape after having given his life-belt to another. He received his commission in the 9th Oxford and Buckinghamshire Light Infantry in June 1915. Before going to France he transferred to the 21st Machine Gun Company, and reached the Arras front in September 1916. He was killed in action at the battle of Arras. Having brought his guns into position for assisting the attack on Hénin-sur-Cojeul, he saw that the men at one of them were in difficulty. Refusing to allow any of those whom he had placed in shelter to carry his instructions he started to go himself, and soon after was seen to fall shot through the heart. Buried near Hénin-sur-Cojeul.

BENSON WRIGHT March 14, 1896—Nov. 18, 1916

Lieutenant, Seventy-fifth Battalion.

Son of Alfred Wright; b. Toronto; ed. Rosedale p.s., Upper Canada College; University College 1913-15; Kappa Alpha; 9th Horse, Lieut.

He was appointed in the summer of 1915 to the 75th Battalion, and went overseas the following March. He reached France with his battalion in August 1916. A few days later he was wounded at St. Eloi, but rejoined his unit before it went to the Somme in September. Shortly before his death he brought in a wounded man who was lying close to the enemy's trench. On November 18th the battalion attacked 'Desire' Trench. As Machine Gun Officer he took his guns to a forward position beyond the captured lines, and while supervising the placing of these he was killed by a sniper. Buried where he fell near Courcellette.

DOUGLAS ARCHIBALD WRIGHT Oct. 3, 1895—Aug. 12, 1918

Lieutenant, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Son of the Rev. T. H. Wright; b. Ormstown, P.O.; ed. Sidney and Nicola p.s.s., Kamloops n.s., King Edward n.s., Vancouver; Columbian College; Victoria College 1910-11; 104th Regt.

He enlisted in April 1915 in the 1st Universities Company, P.P.C.L.I., and was made Corporal before going overseas in the next month. He joined the battalion at the front in July, and served at the Somme and before Armentières. In the spring of 1916 the battalion moved to the Salient, and on June 3rd he was wounded at Sanctuary Wood. He then received his commission and returned to the front before Lens in May 1917. He then served through the battles of Hill 70 and Passchendaele, and on the Arras front in 1918. He fell in action on the fourth day of the battle of Amiens. As he was leading his men in a bombing attack on the enemy's trench he was wounded in the chest, and died at the dressing station shortly afterwards. Buried at Bouchoir.

WILLIAM JONATHAN WRIGHT Nov. 14, 1874—Aug. 18, 1917

Lieutenant, Nineteenth Battalion.

Son of the late George Wright; b. Harrington; ed. St. Mary's p.s. and c.i.; University College 1892-96, B.A. (Classics); M.A. 1897; Teaching at Warkworth, Bradford, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Forest; Principal, St. Mary's c.i.; 28th Regt., Lieut.; md. Mary Edith Robertson.

Though over forty years of age he soon prepared to go on Active Service, and was appointed to the 110th, Perth County, Battalion in December 1915 and went overseas in August 1916. He joined the 19th Battalion in France in October and served with it on the Vimy front and through the battle of the Ridge. In May 1917 he was attached to the 4th Trench Mortar Battery. He was killed in action during a German counter-attack after the capture of Hill 70. Buried at Sans-en-Gohelle near Lens. His Commanding Officer wrote "Had he come through this attack I should have recommended him for the Military Cross".

HAROLD VERSCHOYLE WRONG Dec. 1, 1891—July 1, 1916

Lieutenant, Lancashire Fusiliers.

Son of Professor G. M. Wrong; b. Toronto; ed. Bishop Ridley College, St. Andrew's College; University College 1909-13, B.A. (Classics, Eng. and Hist.); Kappa Alpha; Historical Club; XIII Club; Tennis colours; Flavelle Scholar, Christ Church, Oxford.

In December 1914 he received his commission in the 15th, Salford, Battalion of the Lancashire Fusiliers. He crossed to France with this unit in November 1915 in the 32nd Division, and went into the line in the area of the future Somme battle, between Thiepval and La Boisselle. On July 1st, 1916, his brigade attacked Thiepval frontally. He was last seen crossing the German front line wounded in the hand. Most of the battalion was cut off after crossing the first line, and nearly all were killed. Thirteen officers and over five hundred men were missing, and but few were afterwards reported as prisoners.

NORMAN JAMES LANG YELLOWLEES Aug. 12, 1886—May 5, 1916

Captain, Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of Thomas Yellowlees; b. Toronto; ed. Lansdowne and Wellesley P.S., Jarvis Street C.L., Toronto; University College 1903-07, B.A. (Biol. & Phys. Sci.); M.B. 1909; Year Secretary; Nu Sigma Nu; Staff, Toronto General Hospital; Practising in Toronto; C.A.M.C., Capt.

He was appointed in March 1915 as Adjutant to No. 4, University of Toronto, General Hospital, and went overseas in May. He reached Salonica with this unit in November. When a Zeppelin had been brought down by the fire from H.M.S. 'Agamemnon' and had fallen into the marshes near Salonica, he set out with three others of the Hospital staff to see the wreck. As he was trying to cross the Vardar River his horse stepped into deep water and he was carried down. Dr. George Wilson, who was with him, made a brave but vain attempt to rescue him, and nearly lost his own life in the effort. Captain Yellowlees' body was recovered later and buried at Salonica.

ARTHUR WARREN YOEELL Aug. 25, 1888—Nov. 12, 1918

Sergeant, Canadian Field Artillery.

Son of George W. Youell; b. Aylmer; ed. Aylmer P.S. and H.S.; Applied Science 1906-10, B.A.Sc. (Mech. Eng.—Hon.); Staff 1910-12; Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co., Sherbrooke, P.Q.

In September 1916 he enlisted in the 67th, University of Toronto, Battery, C.F.A., and went overseas the next month. He was promoted Sergeant in England, but reverted to go to France in March 1917. Having served in the 1st Divisional Ammunition Column, he transferred after the battle of Vimy to the 24th Battery, in which he was again promoted Sergeant in July. He served through the battles of Vimy, Hill 70 and Passchendaele. In the latter he won the Military Medal for maintaining communication with a signal lamp for several hours, during which he remained in the open under heavy fire. He was offered a commission on the field in April 1918, but refused, preferring to go to England to take a complete course. He was about to leave for this purpose, when on the night of August 6th, just before the Amiens advance, he was wounded at the battery position by a splinter from an aeroplane bomb. Blood poisoning developed later and he succumbed on the day after the Armistice. Buried at Southampton, England.

MARTIN CORTLANDT DE BUDÉ YOUNG Sept. 8, 1894—Sept. 26, 1915

Second Lieutenant, King's Own Scottish Borderers.

Son of Colonel F. de B. Young, C.M.G.; b. Naini Thal, India; ed. Heswall, Cheshire, R. Naval College, Osborne; Elizabeth College, Guernsey; Trinity College School; Trinity College 1913-14; O.T.C., Elizabeth College.

On the outbreak of the war he went to England and joined the Sportsmen's Battalion, R. Fusiliers. He then obtained his commission, and being appointed to the 7th King's Own Scottish Borderers, reached France in July 1915. In the attack on Hill 70 by the 15th Division at the battle of Loos, he led his men over the trench front. The battalion was for the moment checked by heavy shell fire and gas fumes. He at once called out to Piper Lachlan "Give the boys a skirl"—a well-known incident—and the advance began. Shortly afterwards he was wounded. When the stretcher-bearers came to take him up he told them to take one of the Privates instead, and started to walk to the dressing station. The effort cost too much, and he died from loss of blood shortly after. Buried at Nœux-les-Mines.

Son of the late Dean John Galbraith; b. Toronto; ed. Model School, Toronto, University of Toronto Schools, St. Andrews' College; Applied Science 1911-15, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); 9th Horse, Lieut.

He was appointed to the 75th Battalion in June 1915, and went overseas in September in command of a draft from that unit. He then transferred to the Canadian Machine Gun Corps, and went with the 6th Brigade Company to France in April 1916. He served with this unit at St. Eloi, Ypres and Courcellette. In January 1917 he transferred to the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Railway Troops, with which he served for the next two years. He was awarded the Military Cross for his service at Villers Bretonneux in the Retreat of March 1918. Finding that his company was exposed on the flank he withdrew it to a support trench, and then went forward himself with a machine gun and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. After reorganising his company he led it forward to its original position, which he held until relieved. After his return to Canada he was employed with the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment for some months, till he was forced to give up from ill health, and died at Toronto after a long illness.

GRANT ARMSTRONG GOODERHAM Jan. 18, 1892—May 2, 1919

Captain, Royal Air Force.

Son of Edward George Gooderham; b. Toronto; ed. St. Alban's School, St. Andrew's College; Applied Science 1911-15, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.); C.O.T.C.

On graduating he joined the R. Naval Air Service, and received his commission in July 1915. He went to France in April 1916 joining the 1st Squadron, No. 1 Wing, and served in the Dunkerque and Somme areas till February 1917. He was promoted Flight Lieutenant in November 1916. After a period in England, when he was attached to the R.F.C. Testing Squadron, he returned to the front in June 1917, but in August was declared physically unfit for further active service flying, and came home on leave. Though he was not in good health he returned to England in January 1918, and was employed in technical and instructional work till the end of the war. In April 1918 he was promoted Captain in the Royal Air Force. A short time after his return home and discharge, he was missing and was found drowned in Toronto Bay.

ANGUS DOUGLAS GRAY Dec. 11, 1897—Oct. 25, 1918.

Lieutenant, Fourth Brigade Machine Gun Company.

Son of John Gray; b. Toronto; ed. Port Credit P.S., Parkdale C.I., Toronto; University College 1914-15; 36th Regt., Lieut.

He was appointed in August 1915 to the 74th Battalion, and went overseas in October. He reached France in the summer of 1916, joining the 4th Machine Gun Company. He was wounded on October 1st at the Somme, and again on May 9th, 1917, at Fresnoy. For his service in this battle he was awarded the Military Cross. He came into action in support of a battalion at a critical moment during an enemy counter-attack, and covered its withdrawal. Later he rendered valuable assistance in the Canadian counter-attack, and though he was severely wounded, losing an eye, he remained at his post till success was assured. Being invalided home he was discharged as no longer fit for service in March 1918. Some months later he succumbed to influenza-pneumonia after a brief illness.

IVAN DWIGHT HAYES Dec. 23, 1883—Sept. 12, 1919

Captain, Royal Army Medical Corps.

Son of George S. McBride; ed. Morrisburg C.I.; R. College of Dental Surgeons 1906-10, D.D.S.

He went overseas in September 1914 with the C.A.M.C., and later transferred to the C.A.D.C. After nearly three years' service in France and England he was invalided and returned in broken health. He entered hospital in the autumn of 1918 and died a year later.

WILLIAM LAUGHTON McCULLOUGH Nov. 6, 1886—March 11, 1920

Captain, Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Son of the late Dr. George McCullough; b. St. Mary's; ed. Sault Ste. Marie P.S. and C.I., Hamilton C.I.; Medicine 1905-09, M.B.; Medical work, Trans-Continental and Algoma Central Ry.; Practising at Port Arthur; md. Mabel License.

He was appointed Medical Officer to the 52nd Battalion in July 1915, and went overseas in November. He served in France with this unit and at No. 3 Canadian General and No. 13 Imperial Stationary Hospital, and also with No. 1 Field Ambulance and as Medical Officer to the 3rd Battalion. He was twice severely wounded while with front line units, and once invalided. On his discharge in March 1919 he returned home in bad health, but resumed civilian practice. He was forced to give up in the autumn but returned to his work in January 1920. Going out one very cold night to attend a patient he was taken ill with pneumonia and died a few days later.

RANALD MACDONALD March 18, 1881—March 5, 1920

Sergeant, Eighteenth Battalion and Instructional Staff.

Son of the late Dr. Angus Macdonald; b. Edinburgh; ed. George Watson's College, Edinburgh; Ontario Agricultural College 1908-12, B.S.A.; Barrett Dairy Co., Guelph; Staff, 'Guelph Mercury.'

In October 1914 he enlisted in the 18th Battalion in which he was later promoted Corporal on the field. He served at the front from the autumn of 1915 till he was severely wounded in October 1916 at the Somme. After his recovery he was made Sergeant Instructor at Bramshott. He was on the Agricultural Staff of the Khaki College after the Armistice. On his return to Canada he managed the Macdonald News Agency. He died at Guelph from influenza which developed into pneumonia.

FRANK ROBERTSON MITCHELL Jan. 7, 1893—July 18, 1918

Surgeon Probationer, Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve.

Son of the late D. R. Mitchell; b. Meaford; ed. Meaford P.S. and H.S.; Medicine 1912-15, 1916-18, M.B.

He enlisted in the C.A.M.C. at No. 2 Field Ambulance Depot in May 1915, and went overseas in July. He was then appointed Surgeon Probationer in the R.N.V.R. and served for a year first on H.M.S. 'Penn' and then on H.M.S. 'Archer.' He then returned to complete his course at the University, intending to rejoin the Navy as a Surgeon. He died suddenly at Toronto shortly after graduating.

RUSSELL GEORGE SCOTT Aug. 14, 1891—Dec. 10, 1920

Second Lieutenant, Royal Air Force.

Son of the late Robert A. Scott; b. Seaforth; ed. Tuckersmith P.S., Seaforth C.I.; Applied Science 1911-15, B.A.Sc. (Civ. Eng.—Hon.); Second and First Association Football colours.

He enlisted in December 1915 with the 42nd Battery, C.F.A., in which he was promoted to Sergeant. Going overseas in February 1916, he went to France in July with the 3rd Divisional Ammunition Column. Reverting to the rank of Gunner he then joined the 44th Battery, and later transferred to the 32nd Battery, in which he was made Bombardier. He served first on the Ypres front, and then through the battles of the Somme, Vimy and Hill 70. At Passchendaele he was wounded on November 3rd, 1917. In 1918 he joined the R. Air Force, and obtained his commission shortly before the Armistice. After his discharge in April 1919 he returned to civilian work, but was taken ill and died in hospital at Toronto.

WALTER ALEXANDER SCOTT Aug. 8, 1885—Aug. 12, 1919

Sergeant, Tenth Battalion, Canadian Railway Troops.

613 were killed in action or died on service.

Of the Officers 726 were promoted from the ranks, 411 receiving commissions in the Canadian Forces, 306 in the Imperial Service, and 9 in the Allied Forces. Most of those who received Imperial commissions enlisted originally in the C.E.F. 116 who are included in the ranks were Cadets in training at the time of the Armistice.

The distribution by branches of the Service is shown on the next page.

In these figures are not included 105 members of the University, reported as being on Active Service, concerning whom no information could be obtained.

This summary does not include those who have entered the University after returning from Active Service, and whose records are given in the Appendix that follows.
